GERMANY 'AVOIDS TRAP'

Charge Soviet Move Part of British Trick to Open New War Front.

(By Associated Press)

War clouds blackened over southeastern Europe today.

King Carol II's little Balkan kingdom of Rumania, after yielding to a stiff Russian ultimatum, rushed most of its 2,000,000 troops to the Hungarian frontier

Hungary and Bulgaria called up reserves

Turkey sent her fleet into the Black sea, stripped for action and ready to defend the Dardanelles against any attack.

In Bucharest, German legation officials charged that the Soviet move into Rumania was a trick "inspired by Britain" to create a new war front.

Germany is avoiding any such trap, they said, and is concentrating on the main task ahead—the assault on Britain herself.

Both Hungary and Bulgaria, it was reported, began calling up reservists on a large scale.

Bulgarian regulars were sped by train from the Turkish frontier to the Rumanian border.

Official quarters in Bucharest said they were informed that Hitler had sent a telegram to Josef Stalin asking the Soviet dictator to "meet Rumania half way."

By contrast, there was no tempering of the Nazi fuehrer's ambitions in the war with Britain. Authorized sources in Berlin stated bluntly that Germany's reply to any peace feelers from London is this:

"Cannons are speaking!"

The British have denied any

GAS GOES UP

New Federal Tax Results In Half Cent Increase.

Gasoline will be raised a half cent per gallon at all filling stations in the Mansfield areas as well as the rest of the state, Monday morning, officials of major oil companies announced today.

The price of regular gasoline will be 17 cents per gallon while high test will cost 19 cents. Prevailing prices are 16½ cents for regular and 18½ cents for high test.

It was pointed out that a half cent tax per gallon would be placed on motor oil and a slight increase on automobile tires, but that it would be absorbed by the manufacturer.

Army days

Wendell Lewis Willkie, 48, who went from farm boy to presidency of the Commonwealth and Southern, giant electric utility, today was the Republican nominee for president, victor in an amazing show of strength on the convention floor in Philadelphia, where he was elected early this morning on the sixth ballot. Born in Indiana, he was an attorney in Akron, a captain in the army during the World war. He married Edith Wilk, of Elwood, Ind., in 1918. They have a son, Phillip, 21.

Cloudburst Hits City, 500 Homes Flooded

Streams, Sewers Pour Water Into Homes As 2 Inches of Rain Falls During 2-Hour Period; Bolt Hits House.

(Pictures on Pages 11 and 12)

One of the worst rainstorms in the memory of older residents of the city poured more than two inches of water on Mansfield in two hours this morning, blocking traffic, turning streets into miniature rivers, and flooding at least 500 basements.

The cloudburst struck almost without warning shortly after 7 a. m. and reached a peak as hundreds of persons were going to work at 8 a. m. The official rainfall from 7 to 9 a. m. was 2.1 inches, Weather Observer Otto Sprunger said.

Virtually every highway into the city was blocked as water from overburdened streams and sewers poured into the subways and low places in the streets and roads. For the first time in years, Maple lake overflowed onto Maple street, and flood waters threatened the temporary wood bridge on North Main street between the Pennsylvania and Erie tracks.

Within a few minutes after the downpour began, Touby's run, usually a tiny stream, was a raging torrent, tumbling against the bridges in the northern and eastern sections of the city.

Water was four feet deep in the Park Avenue east and Erie sub-

INJURIES KILL MANSFIELD MAN

Willard F. Hayes, Injured In Crash With Taxicab, Fails to Rally From 72-Hour Coma.

Unconscious for more than 72 hours, Willard F. Hayes, 30, of Cleveland avenue, died in the General hospital yesterday afternoon from injuries received early Sunday morning when the automobile he was driving collided with a taxicab.

Physicians said he suffered a fracture at the base of his skull. He was hurled from his car when his machine collided with the cab at South Franklin avenue and East Second street.

Stewart J. Aplin, 348 East Fourth street, driver of the cab, told police that Hayes apparently failed to observe a stop sign at the intersection.

Hayes death was the second fatality to be recorded on city streets in the past 30 days and boosted Richland county's 1940 traffic toll to eight. Last year at the same time 11 persons were killed in automobile mishaps in the county.

Born April 27, 1910 in Jamesville, Wis., Hayes had resided in

Recall Willkie Campaigned In City for Al Smith, Davey

Wendell L. Willkie, who took the Republican convention by storm and emerged the party's candidate for president, addressed a Mansfield audience twelve years ago and urged Democratic voters to support Al Smith for president and Martin L. Davey for governor of the state.

Attorney George H. Bleecker, who was chairman of the Democratic executive committee at that time, said today he was "a little hazy on the meeting" but remembered Willkie as quite a personality and orator.

Willkie's appearance here was one of those last minute things, he remembered. The rally for Smith and Davey was held at the Majestic theater and a scheduled speaker could not be here.

Bleecker said that he called Henry G. Brunner, who was then chairman of the state Democratic executive committee in Columbus and asked him to get a speaker. Brunner recommended the Akron lawyer who was taking an active part in the campaign and who was

Willkie Won Honor On Unique Campaign

'Match Sticks and Chewing Gum' Setup Turned to Wild Fire as Delegates Sensed His Popular Appeal.

By MAX HILL

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Wendell Willkie has emerged with the Republican presidential nomination from a campaign built, in the words of one of his own close supporters, of "match sticks and chewing gum."

It was a campaign unique in American political history, one which had no beginning that you could put your finger on yet in the late pre-convention days swept the country with amazing power.

The scattered, hit-or-miss tactics of his supporters finally evolved into a regular pattern, but skepticism of hard-handed political regulars wasn't eliminated until he actually translated this public appeal into votes of delegates.

New York, of course, was the focal point for Willkie's campaign organization, but the Empire State's delegation to the convention played little if any part in his early reckonings. Most of the delegation was pledged to Thomas E. Dewey, and Willkie knew that an entanglement with Dewey's powerful organization would work untold harm to his efforts.

He even refrained from public appearances in the states described as "Dewey states."

Last spring, Willkie, busy with the affairs of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, pictured Windsor Grabs Wife's Dress In Auto Accident.

The duke and duchess, in Spain after fleeing from France, were en route to Portugal yesterday when the accident occurred. The impact of the crash sprung open the car door and nearly pitched the duchess into a river.

Utility Chief Nominated on Sixth Ballot

Taft, Bricker and Others Turn Down Chance for Selection as Vice Presidential Candidate; 'Favorites' Routed.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Sen. Charles McNary of Oregon, Republican leader of the U. S. senate, today announced he would accept the G. O. P. vice-presidential nomination, if he is drafted. He thus made himself available as a running-mate for Wendell Willkie on the Republican national ticket since a draft movement already had been launched at the G. O. P. Philadelphia convention. McNary said: "If it is the will of the party and they insist, I will be a good soldier and accept the nomination." The Oregon senator had returned to Washington last night.

BULLETIN

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, told a jammed press conference today he intended to resign from the presidency of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, public utility holding company, Monday.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Roosevelt told his press conference today that he would be glad to meet Wendell Willkie and discuss a common approach to European affairs should the newly named Republican presidential nominee so desire.

By W. B. RAGSDALE

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Wendell Willkie, the business man who mussed his hair and turned into a politician overnight, won the Republican presidential nomination today after the wildest balloting spree of any recent convention.

He wrested the title from whooping delegates on the sixth ballot shortly after midnight. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, his forces badly battered, and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan had freed their supporters to join the mad rush toward the blunt-speaking New York utilities executive.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, his lines crumbling in the stampede, finally fell before the onrush. Then the result was declared unanimous.

Only the vice presidential nomination and the closing convention formalities remained to be disposed of this afternoon by the delegates, weary from the late night session and hoarse from two days of shouting.

But it seemed likely this morning that the convention would run into a snag when it tackled the business of selecting a running mate for Willkie.

Taft and Vandenberg, along with Dewey, turned second place aside. Senator McNary of Oregon was reported to be Willkie's choice, but late this morning McNary, Republican floor leader in the senate, said he had informed leaders of the convention that he would not accept nomination for vice president.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio also took himself out of the

TROUPER: Taft Takes Defeat Cheerfully, Returns to Work

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, son of a president and chief justice of the United States, took his licking from the Willkie "blitzkrieg" like a trouper.

Today, he's ready to go back to his job in the senate and work like a beaver. There's lots to do there and he's going to try and get it done. He's going to support the man his party nominated for the presidency.

He doesn't pretend he liked the convention outcome or expected it. But the Bob Taft who greeted reporters and friends after Wendell Willkie won the Republican nomination was far from a broken man. Tired, wearing a blue suit rumpled from the long day's furious pace, he dashed off a congratulatory telegram to Willkie, made a brief statement over the radio, and called in the newspaper men.

"Hello, fellows," he said. "I don't think there is anything to say but I'm glad to see you."

Right away a reporter fired a question of the moment—would Taft accept the vice-presidential nomination if it were offered to him?"

"I couldn't accept it under any circumstances," he said quietly. "The senate is a very much better job, a greater field of service, in which I'm just starting. I'll be back there Monday when congress reconvenes."

Mrs. Taft, an ardent and effective campaigner for her husband, acted just like the senator, except

OVERWHELMED: Country Boy Sheds Tears When Nominated

By WALTER KIERNAN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA—A homespun country boy from down Indiana way today was the choice of the Republican party for the presidency in the greatest upsurging of the plain people since the days of Abraham Lincoln.

Wendell L. Willkie is "plain folks" and he took his nomination early this morning as Lincoln might have taken it.

"I'm overwhelmed," he said when he could talk at all. "I'm grateful—and I'm humble."

There were tears in his eyes, tears for the tremendous vote which to him represented not just

REPORTS SHARP UPTURN IN REAL ESTATE BUYING

Recorder Says Increase In Selling to Hike Receipts 10 Per Cent Over '39.

A marked gain in real estate activity in Mansfield and Richland county is expected to bring an increase of nearly 10 per cent in the receipts of the county recorder's office for the first half of 1940, Recorder Howard P. Wenning said today.

With receipts for June still incomplete, fees from land deeds and mortgages so far this year amount to $4,579, an increase of nearly $300 over the first six months of 1939, Wenning's records show.

The recorder attributed most of the gain to increase buying and selling of real estate, both in the city and rural areas.

"We are recording an average of 25 property deeds a day as compared to 10 to 15 mortgages," Wenning said.

He said there has also been a gain in the chattel mortgages, indicating increased buying of refrigerators, furniture, and other household equipment.

Mortgages on automobiles are now filed by the county clerk of courts instead of the recorder, and despite the loss of the automobile business, Wenning said receipts at his office this year probably will equal those of most of the years when he handled the auto mortgages too.

Every month this year except March has shown a marked gain over the corresponding month of 1937.

Income at the recorder's office has shown a gain in every month this year except March with February and April producing the biggest increases. Monthly receipts so far in 1940 are:

January, $641; February, $720; March, $716; April, $901; May $869, and June, $728 (incomplete). Funds collected by the recorder go into the county general fund.

NO RECLAMATION

LANDER, Wyo. —(INS)— Governor Nels H. Smith of Wyoming does not want any more land reclamation projects. He told the Wyoming Stock Growers Association at their convention here that much of the land that has been reclaimed for farming would be better adapted to grazing of cattle and sheep and that additional reclamation would cripple the state's livestock industry.

$10,150 PAID FOR RICHLAND CIGARET SALES

County, State to Share In Proceeds From Sale of New Licenses.

Sale of 1940 cigaret licenses in Mansfield and Richland county produced $10,150 which will be distributed to the county, state, and districts in which the vendors do business, Deputy County Auditor Arthur S. Beck said today.

Cigaret vendors purchased 391 licenses, including 386 retail permits at $25 each and five wholesalers' licenses at $100 each.

Four of the five wholesale permits and 257 retail licenses went to Mansfield dealers. The fifth wholesale permit and 39 retail licenses were purchased by Shelby vendors.

Seven of the county's 18 townships have no cigaret dealers, the auditor's figures showed. They are Cass, Jefferson, Monroe, Perry, Plymouth, Troy and Worthington. Beck pointed out, however, that most of the seven townships have villages in them which were not included in the township figures but were considered as corporations.

Madison township outside Mansfield has 24 vendors, more than any other in the county.

Beck said half the revenue from the licenses will go to the state, one-fourth to the county, and one-fourth to the cities, villages, and townships, where the cigaret vendors do business.

THEATERS

War Love Story.

So rapidly have events of world import moved in the past few weeks that a picture based on a topical theme may be outdated before the picture is released, but "Waterlo Bridge" gives a picture of what has happened to thousands of English men and women. The story originally dealt with the World war but its theme was changed to conform to the present war. It is Vivien Leigh's first American made picture since "Gone With The Wind." Co-starred with her is Robert Taylor. It opens at the Ohio tomorrow afternoon and runs a midnight matinee.

Alice Blue Gown.

At last "Irene" comes to Mansfield and audiences at the Madison will hear Anna Neagle sing the famous "Alice Blue Gown" song. Ray Milland is co-starred in this romantic story of a lovely model who ruined a gorgeous gown on the hour of a charity show and wore instead a gown that belonged to her mother. Alan Marshall and Roland Young are in the cast. "The Saint Takes Over," another mystery thriller in "The Saint" series, will also be shown tomorrow.

From Movies to War.

Robert Montgomery, who jumped his M-G-M contract in London five weeks ago to drive a war ambulance in France for three of the liveliest weeks of the war, and who is back home now, is the strange "hero" of "Earl of Chicago," a stupid racket man who turns on his evil mentor. Edward Arnold has the second most important role in the film, which is being shown at the Ritz today and tomorrow. "Geronimo" is the second feature.

Plays Buffalo Bill.

Roy Rogers does what every small boy wants to do, and gets paid for it, in "Young Buffalo Bill," current attraction at the Park theater. Rogers depicts the famous plainsman and buffalo hunter in his younger years when he was a pony express rider and sought adventure in New Mexico. Also shown is "They Shall Have Music," which gives movie audiences the violin music of Jascha Heifetz and a love story between Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds.

Tim McCoy Rides.

Col. Tim McCoy rides again in "Texas Rangers" and plays the hero who, when ever he reaches for his gun, is pretty apt to use it. He is seen as "Silent Tim" who comes to investigate the border lawlessness in Texas. On the same bill at the Majestic is Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart in "The Shop Around the Corner," a simple love story of a boy and a girl who worked together in the same shop. The locale is Vienna before the war.

CYCLIST PUMPS 43,800 MILES

OGDEN, Utah.—(U.P.)—Joseph W. Willett, of Ogden, has just finished bicycling 43,800 miles—all within the city limits.

For 40 years Willett has pedaled his way around the city an average of about three miles a day.

"I don't cover much territory, but I get all over this town and that's all I want to do," Willett said. He wore out two bicycles in the first 23 years, but the last 17 years of wheeling have been covered on the same machine.

Library's Book Truck to Call At City Playgrounds

The Mansfield Public library truck, which has served city playgrounds in the past few years, will continue the service at three of them this summer, despite the fact that all playgrounds are closed.

Miss Lois MacKellar, librarian, said today that Prospect, Brinkerhoff and Johns Park playgrounds were so keenly interested in the book truck that it would make regular trips to them through the summer, starting next Tuesday.

Both adults and children may obtain books from the truck by presenting their library cards. New cards will be issued from the truck.

The following schedule will be carried out every Tuesday during July and August: Prospect school 2 to 2:45 p. m.; Brinkerhoff, 3 to 3:30 p. m.; and Johns Park, 3:45 to 4:30 p. m. Mrs. Ruth Duckwald will be in charge of the truck.

TALKS HERE ON WAR AND TAXES

President of National Real Estate Boards To Be In Mansfield July 8.

Anticipated effect of the European war on real estate and effects which may be expected from industrial activities resulting from national defense measures will be outlined by Newton C Farr, Chicago, president of the National Association of Real Estate boards, in an address before the Mansfield Real Estate Board July 8 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Farr has made a study recently on tax readjustment and will also report on the movement which is being sponsored by the national association to bring about such a readjustment through joint national real estate conferences held in Washington.

Business and civic leaders of Mansfield and surrounding towns have been invited by the Mansfield board to be guests at the noon luncheon meeting, George C. Kyle, president, said.

Farr, a member of the governing council of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and vice president of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency of Chicago, is a member of Chicago's planning commission.

50-TON BEAST

Dinosaur Print Found In Texas Indicates Mammoth Animal.

AUSTIN, Texas.—(U P)—A single footprint, long as a bathtub and 40 inches wide, has convinced Dr E H Sellards, director of a paleontological survey in Texas, that the world's largest dinosaur once roamed over what is now Texas.

From the size of the track, University of Texas experts construe existence of an animal 80 feet long, weighing nearly 50 tons.

The foot-deep track was uncovered at the water's edge of the Paluxy river, near Glen Rose, Tex.

Roland T. Bird, of the American Museum of Natural History, has been sent to the spot to supervise preservation and removal of the dinosaur track To do so, men under Bird's direction will cut away a one-ton block of limestone on which the four-toed marks of the foot are imprinted

Dr. Sellards classified the footprint as belonging to a sauropod, largest type of dinosaurs.

'SAFETY TOWN' TO OPEN THIRD YEAR IN CITY

Children in Bowman School Area to Learn Traffic ABC's Monday.

"Safety Town," miniature street lay-out where children of preschool age are taught their traffic ABC's will open Monday at Bowman school playgrounds under the supervision of the city recreation department.

Patrolman Friend C Boals who devised the novel set up for teaching youngsters' traffic safety said the "game" would be run on a revised schedule of instructions this year.

Entering its third year of operation, the plan this summer will be to reduce the number of tiny toy automobiles and have the children play "auto" with their tricycles, scooters and wagons, advancing to the cars as they progress in their training.

The program consists of teaching the children the proper time and place to cross streets and intersections with the small-scale traffic light operated at the main intersection of "Safety Town."

Boals said that the supply of toy autos used the past two years had been disposed of and that six new cars have been purchased.

The new machines have balloon tires and chain drive. Boals said he is experimenting in the hope that this type of car will be more easily propelled than the old ones. If they prove satisfactory additional autos will be supplied by the Richland county Automobile club which sponsors the project

Miss Helen Sturgeon, 34 Clinton avenue, a physical education student at Bowling Green college, home for summer vacation, has been employed by the recreation board, to supervise the project.

"Safety Town" will be moved to four city playgrounds for two week periods during the next two months, with a weeks stay in Shelby.

The schedule is: July 1-13—Bowman school. July 15 27—Newman school. July 29-Aug 10—Prospect school Aug. 12-24—Brinkerhoff Aug. 26-31—Shelby.

Grizzly Bear as Thief Turns Into Timid Scapegrace

CRANBROOK B C —(UP)—A grizzly bear in the big timber is a fierce beast but when caught stealing groceries its first instinct is to flee according to William Stork White Swan lake trapper, who surprised one in his pantry.

Returning to his cabin after dark, he noticed the kitchen door open and the front door ajar. He approached cautiously with a flashlight in his hand.

Entering the front door he suddenly sweltered on his light and found himself facing a full-grown grizzly bear.

The bear wailed around and leaped through the nearest window, shattering glass on all sides and fled with the window frame around its neck

RESULTS Must Be the Reason

Back from Detroit and Pontiac, Michigan, where he attended a merchandising conference of sales managers of Pontiac dealers from all parts of the country, C. J. Solomon, sales manager for Weidner Motors, Pontiac dealer here, holds as one of the highlights of his two-day visit to the motor cities, the trip through the great plants where the 2,000,000th Pontiac was built just a few days ago.

Mr. Solomon said: "Every man present had plenty of opportunity to take part in discussions of advertising, sales promotion, used car and service policies. I was impressed by the frankness of the discussion and noted particularly that ALMOST WITHOUT EXCEPTION every man in the group displayed a great preference for local newspaper advertising.

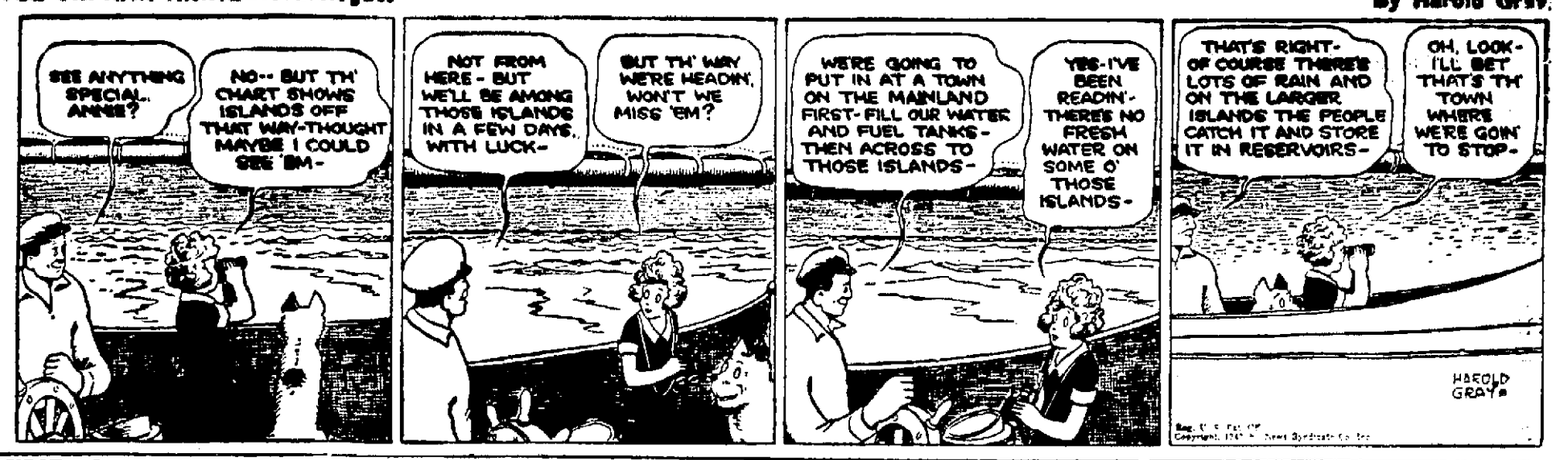
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Travelogue.

By Harold Gray



SEE ANYTHING SPECIAL, ANNIE?
NO-- BUT TH' CHART SHOWS ISLANDS OFF THAT WAY-THOUGHT MAYBE I COULD SEE 'EM-
NOT FROM HERE- BUT WE'LL BE AMONG THOSE ISLANDS IN A FEW DAYS, WITH LUCK-
BUT TH' WAY WE'RE HEADIN', WON'T WE MISS 'EM?
WE'RE GOING TO PUT IN AT A TOWN ON THE MAINLAND FIRST- FILL OUR WATER AND FUEL TANKS- THEN ACROSS TO THOSE ISLANDS-
YES-I'VE BEEN READIN'- THERE'S NO FRESH WATER ON SOME O' THOSE ISLANDS-
THAT'S RIGHT- OF COURSE THERE'S LOTS OF RAIN AND ON THE LARGER ISLANDS THE PEOPLE CATCH IT AND STORE IT IN RESERVOIRS-
OH, LOOK- I'LL BET THAT'S TH' TOWN WHERE WE'RE GOIN' TO STOP-

AND ALL THOSE DOCTORS COULDN'T HELP HER, MOTHER —SHE WON'T EVER SEE AGAIN?
NO—THEY COULDN'T HELP HER, SON—BUT— —MAYBE GOD WILL YET RESTORE HER SIGHT— I—I'M PRAYING THAT IT BE HIS WILL, MY BOY.
--PRAYING CONSTANTLY!— AND YOU MUST PRAY FOR HER, TOO, dIMMY!
OH, I WILL, MOTHER, I WILL!
MAYBE, IF WE PRAY ENOUGH— HAVE FAITH ENOUGH, HE WILL ANSWER OUR PRAYERS!
WILL DAVID CARRY OUT HIS INSANE DETERMINATION? IS RETRIBUTION AT HAND FOR HARDESTY?
CRAZED BY GRIEF, IF DAVID DOES COMMIT SUCH A CRIME, WHAT AN ADDED BLOW IT WILL BE TO PAM!

THE NEBBS—You Tell 'Em, Pa!

By Sol Hess

EMBERT IS A NICE MAN--- USES A LOT OF BIG WORDS --AND WITH MONEY, I'LL BET HE COULD BE VERY UPPITY
HE MIGHT BE A GOOD POWER PILL MAKER BUT WHEN HE AIN'T MAKIN' PILLS HE IS LIKE A COW THAT RUNS DRY--JUST EATIN' --AIN'T PRODUCING ANYTHIN'
I AIN'T LAYIN' IT ALL TO HIM--IT'S MOST-PART SOFIES FAULT--SHE ALLUS HAD IDEAS THAT WAS FEET TALLER THAN HER BRAINS
SHE RUNNED OFF WITH HIM WITHOUT ASKIN' PERMISSION OR ADVICE--THE ONLY REASON SHE BRUNG HIM AROUND HERE WAS 'CAUSE SHE DIDN'T HAVE NO PLACE ELSE TO GO
SHE'S GOT PLENTY OF MONEY IN POTTS' BANK BUT SHE TAKES AFTER YOU--ONCE SHE'S GOT IT, SHE MAKES A PET OF IT!
YOU AIN'T ALTOGETHER MAD AT MONEY YOURSELF!

NOTE IN BOTTLE FOR 1,000 MILES

GREENWICH, Conn.—(U.P.)— In a spirit of adventure, the two small children of Robert V. Titus put a note in a bottle and threw the container into Long Island Sound.

They asked the finder to communicate with them.

Four months later they received an acknowledgment — from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 1,000 miles away, where Loomis Griscom found the bottle washed ashore.

'MATCH STICK' CAMPAIGN WINS

Delegates Quickly Sensed Popular Appeal of Candidate.

himself only as a dark horse contender for the nomination. Russell Davenport, then managing editor of the magazine Fortune, but now affiliated with Willkie, sought an article which would outline his beliefs. It was published in the April issue.

"The response," says Davenport, a nervous, quick-thinking, phrase-making sort of man, "was a deluge of requests for reprints. It got out of hand."

It was Davenport who pinned the "match sticks and chewing gum" designation on the entire effort for Willkie. Davenport found his job at Fortune handicapped him. The magazine is non-partisan. He soon found he wasn't. He resigned.

Through the spring months work for Willkie moved forward on an increasing scale, and then, says Davenport, came "quite a turning point," one which took Willkie out of the dark horse category and put him on a popular basis.

Oren Root jr., resigned from the law firm with which he was affiliated and opened up an office. Root is only 27, anda political tyro. But he rallied a large group of enthusiastic young college men and they went to work with vigor to show up accepted ways of handling a campaign.

Root might be described as a cheer leader, something like a sales manager out to spur his force into doubling its sales.

Willkie clubs sprang up and grew to between five and six hundred in number. His opponents said so much activity couldn't be spontaneous, but it obviously was synthetic with hidden sources for money. The Willkie supporters were emphatic that such wasn't the case.

"Why," says Davenport, "at one time I had to demand that some of the Hollywood-minded boys, who had no actual connection with us but wanted to have, call off their fund raising plans.

"That was when I got my title. "I'm 'the man who has Willkie's confidence.' You see, we had to have some way of persuading people to stop doing things they shouldn't. But I'm not Mr. Willkie's manager."

There is no way of determining how much money was spent for Willkie. He personally has insisted several times that there be no effort to raise funds, no formal campaign. And right up to convention time he was without that usually essential person—a campaign manager.

Davenport, a week or so before the convention, thought that maybe $30,000 had been spent, including about $3,000 of his own money.

INDIGNANT

Alabama Bootlegger Claims Georgian Cheated.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. —(AP)— An indignant Alabama bootlegger searched for the Georgia moonshiner who short measured him on 40 5-gallon cans of purported Georgia moonshine whisky.

Federal Alcohol Tax Unit Director Joe Rollins said the bootlegger complained to federal agents that he paid $250 for the whisky after being allowed to make the "taste test" of thrusting a finger into each can and sampling the contents.

Later the bootlegger said he found that the moonshiner had soldered a pint container inside the mouth of each 5-gallon can and filled it with whisky. The remainder of the can was filled with creek water.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, today released $440,000 of the license tag equalization fund to the 88 counties, each to receive $5,000.

Boston Displays 'Lost Painting' For First Time

BOSTON—(INS)—The Boston Museum of Fine Arts is displaying Rubens' powerful canvas "Portrait of Mulay Ahmad," the first time this well-known work has been presented in a public gallery.

The painting, which had been "lost" for more than 40 years, was purchased from the collection of John Wanamaker, of Lindenhurst.

Identity of the picture was made by Dr. Julius S. Held, noted art critic.

Dr. Held said he believed the portrait was a copy made from the lost original by Jan Vermeyen, a Dutch painter who took part in the expedition to Tunis under Charles V in 1535, and who was commissioned by Charles to make a series of tapestries commemorating the event and affirming his role as protector of Christianity.

Mulay Ahmad, represented in the painting, was the son of Mulay Hasan about whom more is perhaps known than of the son, since he was also involved in the punitive expedition to Tunis.

While Politicians Wrangle They Sit--and Knit

Knitting needles click softly throughout the visitors' galleries at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia as women spectators refuse to permit politics to interfere with that sweater promised Cousin Northrop or Uncle Jeremy. Hale, of Portland, Me., and Mrs. Walter E. Edge (also busily knitting). Mrs. Edge is the wife of the former United States senator and ambassador to France.

War Clouds Darken Over Balkans as Rumania Guards Hungarian Frontier

BULGARIA AND TURKEY SPEED DEFENSE ACTS

Carol Rushes 2,000,000 Men to Border; Turkish Fleet Ready for Battle.

GERMANY 'AVOIDS TRAP'

Charge Soviet Move Part of British Trick to Open New War Front.

(By Associated Press)

War clouds blackened over southeastern Europe today.

King Carol II's little Balkan kingdom of Rumania, after yielding to a stiff Russian ultimatum, rushed most of its 2,000,000 troops to the Hungarian frontier.

Hungary and Bulgaria called up reserves.

Turkey sent her fleet into the Black sea, stripped for action and ready to defend the Dardanelles against any attack.

In Bucharest, German legation officials charged that the Soviet move into Rumania was a trick "inspired by Britain" to create a new war front.

Germany is avoiding any such trap, they said, and is concentrating on the main task ahead—the assault on Britain herself.

Both Hungary and Bulgaria, it was reported, began calling up reservists on a large scale.

Bulgarian regulars were sped by train from the Turkish frontier to the Rumanian border.

Official quarters in Bucharest said they were informed that Hitler had sent a telegram to Josef Stalin asking the Soviet dictator to "meet Rumania half way."

By contrast, there was no tempering of the Nazi fuehrer's ambitions in the war with Britain. Authorized sources in Berlin stated bluntly that Germany's reply to any peace feelers from London is this:

"Cannons are speaking!"

The British have denied any

Republicans Name Willkie 1940 Standard Bearer

Wendell Lewis Willkie, 48, who went from farm boy to presidency of the Commonwealth and Southern, giant electric utility, today was the Republican nominee for president, victor in an amazing show of strength on the convention floor in Philadelphia, where he was elected early this morning on the sixth ballot. Born in Indiana, he was an attorney in Akron, a captain in the army during the World war. He married Edith Wilk, of Elwood, Ind., in 1918. They have a son, Phillip, 21.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Sen. Charles McNary of Oregon, Republican leader of the U. S. senate, today announced he would accept the G. O. P. vice-presidential nomination, if he is drafted. He thus made himself available as a running-mate for Wendell Willkie on the Republican national ticket since a draft movement already had been launched at the G. O. P. Philadelphia convention. McNary said: "If it is the will of the party and they insist, I will be a good soldier and accept the nomination." The Oregon senator had returned to Washington last night.

BULLETIN

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, told a jammed press conference today he intended to resign from the presidency of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, public utility holding company, Monday.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Roosevelt told his press conference today that he would be glad to meet Wendell Willkie and discuss a common approach to European affairs should the newly named Republican presidential nominee so desire.

By W. B. RAGSDALE

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Wendell Willkie, the business man who mussed his hair and turned into a politician overnight, won the Republican presidential nomination today after the wildest balloting spree of any recent convention.

He wrested the title from whooping delegates on the sixth ballot shortly after midnight. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, his forces badly battered, and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan had freed their supporters to join the mad rush toward the blunt-speaking New York utilities executive.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, his lines crumbling in the stampede, finally fell before the onrush. Then the result was declared unanimous.

Only the vice presidential nomination and the closing convention formalities remained to be disposed of this afternoon by the delegates, weary from the late night session and hoarse from two days of shouting.

But it seemed likely this morning that the convention would run into a snag when it tackled the business of selecting a running mate for Willkie.

Taft and Vandenberg, along with Dewey, turned second place aside. Senator McNary of Oregon was reported to be Willkie's choice, but late this morning McNary, Republican floor leader in the senate, said he had informed leaders of the convention that he would not accept nomination for vice president.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio also took himself out of the

Cloudburst Hits City, 500 Homes Flooded

Streams, Sewers Pour Water Into Homes As 2 Inches of Rain Falls During 2-Hour Period; Bolt Hits House.

(Pictures on Pages 11 and 12)

One of the worst rainstorms in the memory of older residents of the city poured more than two inches of water on Mansfield in two hours this morning, blocking traffic, turning streets into miniature rivers, and flooding at least 500 basements.

The cloudburst struck almost without warning shortly after 7 a. m. and reached a peak as hundreds of persons were going to work at 8 a. m. The official rainfall from 7 to 9 a. m. was 2.1 inches, Weather Observer Otto Sprunger said.

Virtually every highway into the city was blocked as water from overburdened streams and sewers poured into the subways and low places in the streets and roads. For the first time in years, Maple lake overflowed onto Maple street, and flood waters threatened the temporary wood bridge on North Main street between the Pennsylvania and Erie tracks.

Within a few minutes after the downpour began, Touby's run, usually a tiny stream, was a raging torrent, tumbling against the bridges in the northern and eastern sections of the city.

Water was four feet deep in the Park Avenue east and Erie sub-

INJURIES KILL MANSFIELD MAN

Willard F. Hayes, Injured In Crash With Taxicab, Fails to Rally From 72-Hour Coma.

Unconscious for more than 72 hours, Willard F. Hayes, 30, of Cleveland avenue, died in the General hospital yesterday afternoon from injuries received early Sunday morning when the automobile he was driving collided with a taxicab.

Physicians said he suffered a fracture at the base of his skull. He was hurled from his car when his machine collided with the cab at South Franklin avenue and East Second street.

Stewart J. Aplin, 348 East Fourth street, driver of the cab, told police that Hayes apparently failed to observe a stop sign at the intersection.

Hayes death was the second fatality to be recorded on city streets in the past 30 days and boosted Richland county's 1940 traffic toll to eight. Last year at the same time 11 persons were killed in automobile mishaps in the county.

Willkie Won Honor On Unique Campaign

'Match Sticks and Chewing Gum' Setup Turned to Wild Fire as Delegates Sensed His Popular Appeal.

By MAX HILL

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Wendell Willkie has emerged with the Republican presidential nomination from a campaign built, in the words of one of his own close supporters, of "match sticks and chewing gum."

It was a campaign unique in American political history, one which had no beginning that you could put your finger on yet in the late pre-convention days swept the country with amazing power.

The scattered, hit-or-miss tactics of his supporters finally evolved into a regular pattern, but skepticism of hard-handed political regulars wasn't eliminated until he actually translated this public appeal into votes of delegates.

New York, of course, was the focal point for Willkie's campaign organization, but the Empire State's delegation to the convention played little if any part in his early reckonings. Most of the delegation was pledged to Thomas E. Dewey, and Willkie knew that an entanglement with Dewey's powerful organization would work untold harm to his efforts.

He even refrained from public appearances in the states described as "Dewey states."

Last spring, Willkie, busy with the affairs of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, pictured

The duke and duchess, in Spain after fleeing from France, were en route to Portugal yesterday when the accident occurred. The impact of the crash sprung open the car door and nearly pitched the duchess into a river.

TROUPER: Taft Takes Defeat Cheerfully, Returns to Work

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, son of a president and chief justice of the United States, took his licking from the Willkie "blitzkrieg" like a trouper.

Today, he's ready to go back to his job in the senate and work like a beaver. There's lots to do there and he's going to try and get it done. He's going to support the man his party nominated for the presidency.

He doesn't pretend he liked the convention "outcome or expected it. But the Bob Taft who greeted reporters and friends after Wendell Willkie won the Republican nomination was far from a broken man. Tired, wearing a blue suit rumpled from the long day's furious pace, he dashed off a congratulatory telegram to Willkie, made a brief statement over the radio, and called in the newspaper men.

"Hello, fellows," he said. "I don't think there is anything to say but I'm glad to see you."

Right away a reporter fired a question of the moment—would Taft accept the vice-presidential nomination if it were offered to him?"

"I couldn't accept it under any circumstances," he said quietly. "The senate is a very much better job, a greater field of service, in which I'm just starting. I'll be back there Monday when congress reconvenes."

Mrs. Taft, an ardent and effective campaigner for her husband, acted just like the senator, except

GAS GOES UP

New Federal Tax Results In Half Cent Increase.

Gasoline will be raised a half cent per gallon at all filling stations in the Mansfield areas as well as the rest of the state, Monday morning, officials of major oil companies announced today.

The price of regular gasoline will be 17 cents per gallon while high test will cost 19 cents. Prevailing prices are 16½ cents for regular and 18½ cents for high test.

It was pointed out that a half cent tax per gallon would be placed on motor oil and a slight increase on automobile tires, but that it would be absorbed by the manufacturer.

The "Blitzkrieg" of accidents is on. Your BEST insurance is a better car. About this time each year—just before the "Fourth"—and in time for vacations, dealers offer drastic price cuts. This year is no exception.

Recall Willkie Campaigned In City for Al Smith, Davey

Wendell L. Willkie, who took the Republican convention by storm and emerged the party's candidate for president, addressed a Mansfield audience twelve years ago and urged Democratic voters to support Al Smith for president and Martin L. Davey for governor of the state.

Attorney George H. Blecker, who was chairman of the Democratic executive committee at that time, said today he was "a little hazy on the meeting" but remembered Willkie as quite a personality and orator.

Willkie's appearance here was one of those last minute things, he remembered. The rally for Smith and Davey was held at the Majestic theater and a scheduled speaker could not be here.

Blecker said that he called Henry G. Brunner, who was then chairman of the state Democratic executive committee in Columbus and asked him to get a speaker. Brunner recommended the Akron lawyer who was taking an active part in the campaign and who was

OVERWHELMED: Country Boy Sheds Tears When Nominated

By WALTER KIERNAN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA—A homespun country boy from down Indiana way today was the choice of the Republican party for the presidency in the greatest upsurging of the plain people since the days of Abraham Lincoln.

Wendell L. Willkie is "plain folks" and he took his nomination early this morning as Lincoln might have taken it.

"I'm overwhelmed," he said when he could talk at all. "I'm grateful—and I'm humble."

There were tears in his eyes, tears for the tremendous vote which to him represented not just field. He said he would not permit his name to go before the convention.

"I am a candidate for re-election as governor of Ohio," he said. "I have a contract with the people and I intend to keep it."

The 48-year-old Willkie, never before a candidate for public office, learned of his nomination in his hotel suite, crowded with enthusiastic friends.

I am very appreciative, I'm very humble, and very proud," he said.

"I intend to give everything I have to bring about American prosperity, building an adequate national defense and restoring national unity."

For a time it had been thought he might come to the convention to address the delegates. The galleries roared for hi mafter his nomination just as they had during the last two days. Time and again, Chairman Joseph W. Martin threatened to have the 12,000 visitors ousted.

One by one, Willkie bowled over the "favorite sons" in the early balloting. Then his drive went into the camps of the men who three weeks ago had been favored to win the nomination.

First Dewey's lines began to tremble and crack. Dewey released his delegates on the fifth ballot, and there was a drive for Taft, with the workers of Herbert Hoover aiding in the push. But it failed.

The thousands in the galleries, hoarse from hours of shouting "We want Willkie," took up the chant again. Delegations that hesitated or turned against Willkie were booed; then cheered to a rafter-shaking echo when they turned back to him.

His nomination went over in the middle of the sixth roll call of the longest nominating fight the Republicans have had since Warren G. Harding was named in 1920. Once, as the lines tightened, a delegate sought to move a recess. But Chairman Martin drove them ahead.

Pennsylvania had a chance to become the key delegation to turn the nomination to Willkie. Its big delegation of 72 men and women had been giving the majority of their support to Gov. Arthur James, but with a split that spilled more votes to Willkie on each ballot.

When the state was reached on the sixth roll call, Willkie had 438 delegates. The Pennsylvania delegation, voted solidly, would have put him across the line. But the delegation was outside in a caucus and David Reed of Pennsylvania, the former senator, passed.

Eight more states were called and each piled up more votes for the New Yorker. After Virginia had heaped more upon the total, it stood at 499 for Willkie, with the race squarely between him and Taft—and the senator slipping fast.

At this point, the Pennsylvania delegation filed back into the hall. Reed leaped up to report that his state wanted to cast its vote. The 72 votes were dumped upon the Willkie bandwagon. Then Washington threw in 10 more.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio sought, after the delegates began to fall away from Taft, to make Willkie's nomination unanimous.

Tall clad in a white suit, his silvery hair gleaming, he strode to the platform. But Martin insisted that the roll call be completed in the last poll of protesting delegations. For half an hour or more after the issue had been decided, the roll call went ahead while state after state changed its vote to record itself unanimously for Willkie.

When 998 of the 1,000 delegates—there were two absentees—had been recorded for the new candidate, Martin allowed the motion for unanimity to be put. It was carried with an echoing roar of ayes.

A telegram from Herbert Hoover to Willkie congratulating him, was read. Mr. Hoover had been in Philadelphia and his lieutenants had plugged hopefully for his nomination. But it was not to be. He gathered 17 votes on the first ballot, 21, on the second, 32 on the third, dropped to 31 on the fourth, and his delegates dwindled to 29 on the fifth.

That final climactic scene was one such as few conventions see. The end of the fifth ballot and the spectacular gain Willkie had made in it set the galleries to roaring. Tier upon tier up the steeply banked walls, jamming every aisle, the visitors screamed down to the convention to nominate Willkie.

Word had spread that Mr. Hoover had sent word to his friends in the California delegation to swing to Taft. California voted 26 for Taft, 17 for Willkie but in a poll four Hoover votes were weaned from Taft.

As the roll call went ahead, women shrieked with each new Willkie gain. But Ohio held tightly to Taft.

As the delegates streamed out of the hall, Alf M. Landon, the 1936 nominee, who had turned his Kansas delegation to Willkie two ballots before the nomination, was saying:

"The political principles of Mr. Willkie are very much in line with mine.

"I believe he got the nomination free of any commitments or promises that will in any way hamper him in making a splendid, vigorous, competent chief executive."

Facts In Nutshell About Nominee

PHILADELPHIA — (AP — Facts about Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee:

Born in Elwood, Ind, Feb. 28, 1892.

Educated at Indiana university, A. B 1913; LL. B. 1916; LL. D. 1938; attended Oberlin in 1916.

Admitted to bar in Indiana in 1916; practiced law in Elwood, Akron, and New York.

President of Commonwealth and Southern corporation since 1933.

Married Edith Wilk of Rushville, Ind, Jan. 14, 1918; one son, Philip.

Home Town Whoops It Up.

ELWOOD, Ind. — (TP) — The home town of Wendell Willkie, exhausted from a frenzied torchlight parade, made plans today for the Republican presidential candidate's acceptance speech from the steps of Central high school, where he was graduated.

Friends said they had been informed Willkie planned to return to the city where he was born and raised, for the notification ceremonies.

The city of 10,000 in the heart of the Indiana farm belt roared with excitement last night as radios blared Willkie's spectacular rise during the six convention ballots. Neighbors ran from house to house spreading the news and shouting, "he's doing it."

Both of Elwood's fire trucks, sirens whining, and the entire police force led the parade that developed even before the nomination was won. Hundreds of automobiles toured the leafy streets with horns tooting and flags waving from windows.

Store keepers made unexpected profits as townspeople bought up their entire kerosene supplies to make torches.

The frame house where Willkie was born was a center of interest as the parade wound through the streets. Along with the grade school and Central high school which he attended, it already has become a major sightseeing point in the town whose chief claim to fame previously had been its tomato festival.

The candidate's parents did not live to see their son's triumph. His mother died early this year, and his father, an attorney here for many years, died about 10 years ago.

However, he has scores of relatives in the town from which he moved 20 years ago. Most of them live on farms.

Three brothers and two sisters are living, but all have moved from Elwood. Fred and Robert live at Louisville, Ky., and Edward at LaGrange, Ill. Mrs. Charlotte Peyl is the wife of a diplomatic service employe in Germany, and Julia lives at St. Catherine's, Ont.

Willkie Selection Worries New Deal.

WASHINGTON — (INS — Selection of Wendell Willkie by the Republicans as their 1940 standard bearer served today to still further increase the demand in Democratic circles that President Roosevelt stand for a third term.

New Dealers recognized in the aggressive utilities man a far more formidable candidate than had the G. O. P. nomination gone to such hopefuls as Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio or the youthful Thomas E. Dewey. Willkie's personality and campaign appeals are forcibly demonstrated at Philadelphia this week.

Mr. Roosevelt continued to maintain his sphinx-like silence on the third term issue, although the great bulk of Democratic party leaders for several months have been going on the assumption he would run again.

Some months back, at Hyde Park, the president sought to forestall further questioning on his third term intentions by telling reporters that he would make his announcement at a time of his own choosing, not the time set by the press or political leaders.

Should he announce his retirement at this late date it unquestionably would throw the Democratic party into something akin to confusion, although Mr. Roosevelt would be expected to attempt to dictate his own successor in such an event.

New Deal leaders momentarily withheld public observations on the Willkie candidacy and all of the Republicans were in Philadelphia.

Willkie's nomination left many key men in the Roosevelt administration silent. Three of the foremost New Dealers, Secretaries of the Interior Ickes, Agriculture Wallace and Commerce Hopkins all said in turn:

"I have no comment."

Whether the New Dealers were stunned by the Willkie nomination or whether they were remaining silent awaiting a cue from their leader in the White House was not known.

Farley Declares Issue Clarified.

WASHINGTON — (INS — Postmaster General James A. Farley, head of the Democratic national committee today said that the nomination of Wendell Willkie as Republican presidential nominee "greatly clarifies" the 1940 national election issue.

Farley's statement follows:

"The nomination greatly clarifies the issue before the nation—which is a good thing. The question is, of course, what sets of forces, economic and social, are to conduct our government, the historic American processes, or some new and somewhat foreign methods of concentrated control.

"Most of the rank and file Republicans will understand this as well as most of the rank and file Democrats."

Farley would not elaborate on the statement.

WAR THREATS GATHER OVER BALKAN AREA

peace overtures.

Russian troops, heavily reinforced by tanks and planes, poured across the Rumanian frontier shortly after dawn—swiftly following up the Russian ultimatum to Rumania which expired at 10 p. m. (3 p. m., EST) yesterday—and occupied four cities in the ceded provinces of Bessarabia and Bucovina.

It was not immediately known whether King Carol appealed to Hitler for actual military help to combat the Soviet invasion or merely asked the German fuehrer to intercede diplomatically for moderation of Russia's stiff demands.

The king had yielded "in principle" to the Soviet ultimatum two hours before its expiration; but had pleaded for time to negotiate.

While world attention shifted to the Balkans, the major European struggle between Britain and the Nazi-Fascist Axis powers was marked by new German air raids over the British Isles and the torpedo-sinking of a deeply-laden 8,000-ton German transport by a British submarine off the south coast of Norway.

The sinking incident, though comparatively minor in itself, may have disclosed one of the first clues of the scene chosen by Hitler for his heralded invasion of England.

If the German transport was a troop ship, laden with soldiers en route to Norway, it may indicate that the Nazi fuehrer has decided on the conquered Scandinavian kingdom as a springboard for his assault.

A few minutes before a Soviet ultimatum expired yesterday King Carol agreed to give up Bessarabia, northern Bucovina, and rights in important Black sea ports.

There were indications that the Axis partners gave silent consent to dismemberment of the country.

Rumania's neighbors clamored that their claims, too, must be heeded. Hungary wants Rumania's large western province of Transylvania. Bulgaria claims southern Dobruja.

Turkey sent warships into the Black sea, Yugoslavia reinforced the guard on her Italian border.

In the war in the west German bombers raided Britain for the seventh time in 10 days, ranging from southeast England to southeast Scotland. The British government said there was "no serious damage" and "very slight casualties."

Today is a double anniversary for embattled Europe.

Twenty-six years ago Gavrio Prinzip fired the shots that touched off the World war through the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife. 21 years ago Germany acceded to the treaty of Versailles ending that war.

Berlin papers took note of the latter anniversary to comment that that treaty is "now dead."

England's powerful conservative party pledged continued wholehearted support of former Prime Minister Chamberlain and the government's determination to fight to victory.

The party vigorously denied suggestions that Chamberlain might head a "surrender cabinet" to talk terms with Hitler.

Equally firmly, German sources denied other reports that Germany has made a "sensational" peace offer to leave Britain's empire untouched, but require internationalization of Gibraltar and the Suez canal.

German troops raised the Nazi Swastika on the French side of the Spanish frontier at Hendaye, completing the Atlantic coast occupation provided in the armistice with France.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The new French capital will be Clermont-Ferrand, in central France, the German radio station DJL announced today in an English-language broadcast heard by NBC.

GRENADE TOSSED

PEIPING — (AP) — A hand grenade was thrown today into the compound of the British embassy, shattering windows and wounding a Chinese employe. The grenade thrower got away.

DOUBLE PLAY

Lightning Hits Housewife And Husband.

MARIETTA — (AP) — A bolt of lightning shot into Mrs. Pete Silvus' kitchen, knocked a skillet from her hand, jumped to a nearby field and knocked a pitchfork from her husband's grasp.

The husband escaped injury, but Mrs. Silvus was burned severely.

considered one of the "boy orators" of the party.

Blecker also called Willkie in Akron, and seconded Brunner's invitation to speak here.

Willkie came and made a stirring talk for the national and state standard bearers of the Democratic party.

Davey lost the election that year—1928—to Myers Y. Cooper, and in 1930 Willkie continued to campaign for the Democratic party. Former Governor George White, said today: "Wendell ably conducted my Summit county gubernatorial campaign in 1930." White also is a Democrat.

Blecker said he couldn't remember much about the now Republican candidate for president, but several women who remember him vow that he was "very handsome."

Willkie, a veteran of the World war, twice served as commander of the American Legion post in Akron, according to Legionnaires of Mansfield who know him, the only man ever to be so honored in that city.

Willkie returned to Akron just 12 weeks ago as guest speaker for the Akron Legion Post, and it was during that address that he called upon former service men of the army and navy to act and to back to the limit the Legion's demand for national defense.

"We are faced with the necessity for action" he said then, "and we are faced with grave decisions involving the destiny of our country."

Willkie, a native of Indiana, arrived on the Akron scene in 1919, joining the legal department of one of the major tire companies. He first came to notice because of his militant attitude toward the Ku Klux Klan, but no one dreamed then that he would be called upon to lead the G. O. P. back to the White House.

In fact, he served as a delegate to the Democratic national convention in 1924. But Willkie, after breaking with the New Deal turned to the Republican party and his rise within that party has been without parallel.

Newsmen in Philadelphia found him easy to approach, asserting that he "exuded confidence without, in the least degree, giving the impression of cockiness."

ways and two feet deep on North Main street below Sixth street. Cars stalled everywhere, and a group of tourists who parked their car and trailer at the east end of the Erie subway west of the city were stranded when the water rose rapidly.

Struck by Lightning.

Lightning struck the residence of Rufus Kern, 608 Park avenue west, at 8:57 a. m., but only minor damage was reported. Electric and telephone services were disrupted in some parts of the city by the lightning charges.

Scores of telephone calls swamped city departments and county commissioners as the flood washed out roads and driveways and poured into basements.

"Anyplace that ever had water in it in Mansfield had plenty this morning," Mayor William J. Locke said.

The dense, low-hanging clouds blotted out the sun to give the city a natural "black-out."

Lights in homes and business places were turned on.

Although Sandusky reported a similar "black-out" and a heavy rain this morning, it was believed the storm centered in the Mansfield area since there were no immediate reports of damage elsewhere in the state. The storm struck Sandusky and Lorain on the 16th anniversary of the tornado that wrecked the lake cities in 1924.

Hits Farmers Again.

County Agent George B. Ganyard said the heavy rain would further delay farm work, already far behind schedule, and it was expected to cause considerable damage to ripening wheat and corn. Some farmers have been unable to work in their fields for several weeks because of the excessive rain.

Predicting that the flood waters would result in heavy damage to county roads and bridges, County Engineer Howard Sword and county commissioners made a tour of inspection through parts of the county before noon today.

Today's rainfall brought the total for June to 8.45 inches as compared to the average of about 4.5 inches. It has rained 16 days so far this month.

From a low of 57 degrees during the storm this morning, the temperature moved back to 78 at noon. The forecast was for partly cloudy and slightly cooler weather tonight, with fair and cool predicted for Saturday.

she didn't talk for publication. She chatted and shook hands and told friends what a "grand fight" she thought "Bob" made for the nomination.

Both must have been weary near to the limit of endurance, but they carried on; they didn't hurry out, and it was a cheery pair that waved goodbye to friends an hour later. The Tafts are staying at the home of friends in Bryn Mawr just outside of town, with their four sons.

It was the campaign staff that took it hardest in the Taft camp. They had been the most confident outfit in town that their man would get the call.

Their reaction to the balloting was mercurial. When Taft started gaining, they thought "Wendell is going to drop off." When the going got bad, the Taft headquarters took on every aspect of a morgue.

The first touch of cheery relief was provided in the smiling appearance of Taft himself, sorry but with no broken heart, already concentrating on work ahead, wasting no precious moments on vain regrets.

CHAPTER XII

Then she was alone again for several minutes. Monty, quietly figuring and writing in the far corner of the store, was not visible from the front counter area. Rosemary wandered out to look at the probable site of the new gasoline pump, and as she reached the porch another car pulled up. She noted that the driver was a big man, big and dark. She went back in to be ready to wait on him. Nor was he reticent. He stalked in with a peculiar positive manner, removed a large hat and boomed a greeting.

"Well, well, howdy miss! Been hearing about you!"

"Thank you. Can I wait on you?"

"Sure, sure; but no hurry, hanh?" He grinned, even though his scrubby beard revealed slight evidence of it

"Oh no! Please feel right at home. We like our customers to be sociable, sir."

"Anh, that's better! That's much better, yup. Say, you're a good looker, right enough, anh?" He grinned again, broadly this time. And immediately he glanced around the store. He could not see Monty at work in a corner, nor was there anybody else in sight

Quite involuntarily Rosemary followed his glance. And for no tangible reason whatsoever, a sudden alarm assailed her.

Alarm for what? What caused the flash of fear?

She asked herself that, and felt childish. Of course it was pure imagination. This man was no more than many of the other rough and hearty men who traded there. A woodsman, or maybe a miner or rancher.

"What's yore name?" he suddenly asked.

"Why—Taylor, Rosemary Taylor!"

"Yeanh? . . . Well-well-well! . . . A pretty little miss with a pretty little name — whay-haw-haw!"

It seemed astonishingly funny to him. His own summary, or his own feeble joke or something. Rosemary felt confused, but smiled determinedly. The outburst caused Monty Montgomery to leave his chair and peer curiously around a great stack of Navajo rugs, but he made no sound.

"Well, little curly, I buy lots of goods for a big lumber camp down the hill. Plenty of profit. Understand? He eyed her meaningly. "Now you wanted sociability, so how about starting with a friendly kiss? Anh?"

He reached out to grasp her arm.

"No!" Rosemary cried in terror

"Nanh? . . Sure, come on!" He began laughing, and pulling her toward him. His great bulk made her appear like a twelve-year-old "Bucky, anh?"

"Stop it! . . . Stop!"

She was jerking her arm and struggling, but his grip was steel, and he grinned down at her in high amusement.

* * *

"Oh I say—!"

Dr. Archibald Montgomery's words were uttered in protest, but they were entirely too feeble to be heard.

They were, in fact, a peculiar kind of croak. Persons who are not given often to vehemence may find themselves with a throat affliction in moments of stress, an odd contraction of muscles which may send the voice into weird depths

For a second or two more Monty's lips moved and no sound at all came. He lifted his hand, as if in supplication; his face, at first deathly pale, had flushed with anger. Part of the anger was at himself because he could not even make the other man hear him Ward Bascom, in fact, still thought he and Rosemary were alone.

Monty never knew by what mental process he willed his muscles to do as they did He stared, spellbound, at the huge man trying with loud laughter to kiss Rosemary, and then he just grabbed the first movable object at hand. Almost tragically, the weapon turned out to be a broom!

Nor did he even have presence of mind enough to swing that effectively. He simply stepped forward and poked the brushy part into Bascom's side, commanding attention.

"I say—I say, there! Oh I say —" He was still croaking his protest, and he was trembling a little too. Then something masculine took control in him and all at once Monty lifted his fist and struck the other man full in the face.

It was not a puny blow, but it did little real harm.

"Hey!"

Bascom's exclamation was a roar of surprise, really. He had been taken aback by the sudden poke of the broom and the blow shook him. To keep from falling he grabbed the wooden counter, then turned with a look of terrific fury.

"Monty!" Rosemary screamed Bascom still held her arm.

Monty lunged forward to strike the big man again, but Bascom's foot jerked up and caught the professor full in the stomach. Monty dropped, breathless save for a little involuntary moaning gasp Rosemary shrieked in terror.

Bascom slowly turned to look at Rosemary again She faced him as if she were hypnotized, as in effect she was Monty was trying to get to his hands and knees. Bascom, arm stretched out holding Rosemary's, was like a powerful animal, not frightened but surprised and confused. For a long moment the room was utterly silent.

Then a second time Ward Bascom's little play was interrupted.

Crack!

From the darker rear of the store came a gunshot.

In the same instant Bascom jerked a quick convulsive motion and the arm that held Rosemary dropped. His other hand grabed that one and he howled in obvious pain. Rosemary was still too petrified to do more than stare at him.

"All right, Ward Bascom!" a firm throaty voice in the rear said. "Now start moving. Outside!"

While Monty watched from the floor, and Rosemary from her position next to the counter, Bascom started to obey the command. And in a moment Sue McKee walked forward, holding her pearl-handled gun.

From the front porch of the store Sue spoke again.

"You are a downright fool, Ward Bascom!" she snapped at him. "I could have killed you just as well as not, you know that. I don't know what you were up to when I arrived. Maybe I should have aimed at your eye instead of your wrist. Shut up, don't answer me, or I may lose control of myself yet! Now get in that car and get going! And you're lucky to say it's an accident, you hear me? If you ever get in sight of me or any friend of mine again you won't be able to say anything, and if I tell Dad about this, you won't be able to anyway. Now git!"

She stamped her foot in emphasis. It was the roundest, finest bawling out Miss Sue McKee had ever given any man, a record in that respect which was to stand all her life. Later, she admitted getting a definite enjoyment from it, for it gave certain pent-up emotions a blessed release.

Immediately, though, she hastened in to Rosemary and found the New York girl limp Monty was standing again obviously not badly hurt

Sue quietly and efficiently talked to them, calmed their hysteria, held Rosemary's head and let her sob a bit in relief and gratitude.

"It's all right, honey," Sue said, gently "Tell me what was going on when you can. Ward Bascom is a known nuisance. He shows up at the mountain dance sometimes and causes trouble, but he's not hard to handle if you are firm with him You needed only to slap him hard Did he try to get fresh?"

Rosemary nodded, shivering a little

"He would I slapped him once when he first came here, myself. He has let me strictly alone since, but some of the other girls have had to face him He thinks he's a terrific ladies' man, but he's just stupid The girls haven't said anything to any of the men yet or there'd be real trouble, you see? Maybe I ought to have killed him."

Killed him! Killed a man!

Sue McKee said it as casually as if she had been commenting on the weather. Just as matter-of-factly; just as earnestly

Rosemary was incredulous That Sue, sweet Sue, who was so gentle and genteel, could thus show the firmness and determination of a pioneer woman—Rosemary had to remind herself again that this was not Broadway no." Fifth avenue. That she was indeed far geographically and spiritually from Manhattan island

"Are you hurt much, Monty?" Sue inquired, kindly.

The poor fellow only shook his head Both girls looked at him, and Rosemary brushed some dirt and lint from his clothing. They sensed rather than actually heard his tacit admission of futility. All at once he turned to Rosemary and with face pitably strained—murmured·

"I detest violence so! I do! But he—but he—!"

Rosemary swallowed. Her own composure had about returned, and she felt keenly for Monty now.

"You were grand Monty. You almost knocked him down."

"But I—I—"

"He is much larger than you. Don't feel badly, please don't. A thing like that won't happen again in a lifetime, hardly!"

* * *

Dr Montgomery turned away His hands, he noted, were still shaking. Not in fear—he could honestly say he knew no fear of the other man—but in sheer nervousness beyond his control. He felt he had been a coward, but he had been incapable and that was woefully embarrassing. Once in a lifetime. Men are supposed to be heroes. Men are supposed to do the rescuing. But when the flood trapped his car, a woman saved him, and now when the woman he admired most in the world was in danger another woman had had to step in. He went back to the corner table where he had been working on a sketch for Rosemary's filling station and sat miserably down. Sue took Rosemary up to her room and made her bathe her face and drink a glass of water, then sit down to talk

"I had hiked through the forest, honey," Sue was explaining the while. "It's just over four miles from home, if we cut through the trees, although it's longer around the highway. I'm glad I happened in Bascom has had a shock. Rest assured that he won't pester you again I'll tip dad off about it."

"No! Please don't, Sue. I don't want to cause any more trouble. I—I think I should learn to shoot myself."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 1940.

Scientists say we're entering an era of serious drought—so enjoy the rain while you can.

There's still tomorrow and Sunday to enjoy the June that you'd been looking forward to all last winter.

It has become increasingly clear that every boy can at least look forward to being mentioned for the presidency.

The Winner, Wendell L. Willkie

OUT of comparative obscurity Wendell L. Willkie zoomed to the forefront of national politics with such startling suddenness that he has now become the Republican nominee for president of the United States—in what will probably be regarded as the most amazing coup in the annals of American political history.

Last night's balloting session of the Republican national convention in Philadelphia was one of intense drama from the second ballot on through the roll call of states to that point in the sixth when it became evident that the nomination of Willkie was assured.

For three ballots procedure followed the familiar convention formula of carrying along the names of favorite sons and minor candidates, as a part of the political maneuvering toward final bandwagon jumps whenever the right moment arrived.

True to forecasts based on pledged delegations, New York's young "gang buster," Thomas E. Dewey, had an impressive lead at the start, which dwindled through the second and third ballots and winked out in the fourth when he was passed by both Willkie and Taft.

Then the battle settled down to a two-man affair, with the combined Dewey and Taft strength on the fourth ballot sufficient to win the nomination, but the effort at that time to throw the Dewey votes to the Ohio contender was futile and when Willkie reached the 429 mark on the fifth ballot, with Taft at 377, it was all over but the shouting and the bandwagon rush in the sixth was assured, with Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio joining in the scramble for front seats.

And who is this Wendell Willkie, about whom you have heard so much in recent weeks and who seems destined to make the 1940 national campaign the most colorful since the days of William Jennings Bryan and Theodore Roosevelt?

Probably the most surprising thing about his nomination by the Republicans is that until a couple of years ago he was a Democrat—not only a voting Democrat but active in that party.

His shift to the Republican party, for which he has now become the standard bearer, came as a result of his recognition of the differences between the principles of the Democratic party and the New Deal party, as exemplified by the present national administration.

Born in Indiana in 1892, a one-time student at Oberlin college and engaged in the practice of law in Akron (1919-1929), Willkie has a background of midwest associations which will serve to localize interest in many sections.

His later connections with utility interests, of which much will be heard during the campaign, led to the position of president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, in which capacity he first attained national recognition for exceptional ability.

In his pre-convention campaign, after he had become interested in the idea, Willkie is said to have violated all the traditional rules of party politics, scorned all customary campaign technique and conducted the show in his own way.

From the scant regard in which he was held by old-line party leaders up to a couple of weeks ago, and despite all the desperate "Stop Willkie" attempts made during the early stages of the Philadelphia convention, Wendell Willkie has emerged as winner of the first heat in the presidential race. Whatever may be the outcome in November it is now assured that this will not be a dull campaign.

Mostly for Younger Readers

WRITING from Philadelphia, Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, made a reference to Minnesota's Governor Harold E. Stassen which should be brought to the attention of every high school and college student and graduate.

In his column, "The Way of the World," Mr. Patterson commented: "Nobody could have looked at the strapping six-footness of 33-year-old Governor Stassen of Minnesota, could have listened to the clear forcefulness of his voice or could have noted the ingenious play of his fine mind without a new sense of faith in America and Americans. The young man, a former railroad conductor and now governor of a great state, is a vivid indication for all other young men that people can go places in a democracy. It was the best keynote speech I ever heard in a national convention. And when that can be said of a man who isn't even old enough to be nominated for the presidency or the vice presidency it ought to give heart to this year's crop of college candidates."

It should be remembered, also, that Stassen's rise to prominence in his own state started when he was in his early twenties, at a time when some young men of probably equal potential capabilities are groping around in a helpless sort of way, waiting for "something to turn up."

Even in Mansfield, where youth has been making an above average showing, a young man in the Stassen age range was heard to ask the other day, "Why don't they do something about improving the airport?"

To this capable, but rather lethargic young man, and to others upon whom Mansfield's future progress will depend, the question might well be asked: "Why don't YOU do something about it?"

Framers of political platforms have a terrible time deciding what they think about everything. There's no such trouble in a dictatorship country. Hitler, Mussolini or Stalin would make up the committees in no time quickly.

Publisher Frank E. Gannett didn't stay in the race long enough to get the radio commentators into agreement on the pronunciation of his name.

A Japanese typewriter has 2,000 letters—which would seem to offer limitless possibilities for the typist with a flair for transpositions.

If some anthropologist eventually finds the Missing Link he'll probably be surprised at the resemblance to someone he knows.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There was once a psychologist whose powers of persuasion were so extraordinary that he could argue the birds down out of the trees. So smooth and compelling were his lines of reasoning that after listening to him a few minutes you automatically would change your opinions, irrespective of how firm your convictions had been.

One day this man was fishing in a river, and as his canoe drifted near a bridge he observed a man on top of the bridge who was about to leap into the water.

"Why are you doing this?" asked the psychologist.

"I'm going to commit suicide," explained the man.

"Don't jump till I get up there," cried the psychologist, making for the shore. As his paddle bit into the water he thought, "I'll talk that poor man out of committing suicide in a jiffy."

Five minutes later, after the psychologist and the despairing man had spoken a few words, they both jumped overboard.

THIS story, in a way, is a close parallel to an important incident in the career of Mrs. Maria Kramer, who is one of New York's best known women executives and who, among other things, owns and operates two large midtown hotels, the Lincoln and the Edison.

Before she became Mrs. Kramer she owned Lichtensteins, a woman's tailoring establishment on Fifth avenue. Max Kramer, a New York business man, wanted to buy the property. To obtain title to the property he had to buy up all the leases held by the tenants in the building. It wasn't long before he had bought up all the leases with the exception of one. This was held by a woman who had made up her mind that she wasn't going to sell at any price. Kramer, a smooth talker and a good business man, decided to handle this case personally. After all, she was merely a woman.

Some time later, friends met him on the street and inquired after the success of his mission.

"Well," replied Max, "you see, it's like this. While discussing the situation we fell in love and got married."

IT SEEMS incongruous, but Marjorie Lawrence will tell you herself that her ambition once was to become the foremost girl jockey in Australia. In her earlier teens she was a "stock girl"—the equivalent of our western cowgirl, riding herd on the range and practically living in the saddle.

Now, however, she is one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan Opera company and thinking in terms of Wagner's Gotterdammerung.

But even a diva may dream of the range. "Soon," says Marjorie, "soon in Texas I will start a kangaroo ranch."

Miss Lawrence has a prize coin collection of which she is quite proud. It isn't a collection of rare coins—just lucky ones. Before going on stage, Director Leopold Saches always gives her a penny—a "lucky" penny. These she keeps. It is, she says, the only superstition that she has.

THE UMBRELLA MAN

Listen, World!

Find the Sore Toe!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU never can tell what's really getting your goat, cramping your style, taking the joy out of life generally. That is, you never can tell until you've done a lot of probing; for the actual cause of our human misery is usually a million miles removed from its ultimate effect.

Take Dizzy Dean, f'rinstance. Remember Dizzy? Three years ago, he was the Oomph Boy in American baseball. Today he's doing a lot of wishful thinking. And all because?

All because someone handed Dizzy a wallop on his big toe!

What's a big toe got to do with a pitching arm? Nothing, thought Dizzy. Or practically nothing. But every time he stepped toward the batter, that big toe hurt. So, to favor the toe, he eased up on his pitching technique. Not consciously, perhaps. Just one of those vague reactions we all resort to under pressure. But, presently, he was definitely pulling his punches. Substituting a fiddle-de-dee delivery for his former full wallop. Which shortly developed a kink in his elbow as well as a cramp in his toe.

You know the rest, if you're a baseball fan. For months Dizzy has been chasing Docs. And getting nothing but bad news. Now he's heading out for the wide, open spaces in search of a real cure. Here's hoping he gets it, poor kid.

Why the burst of sympathy? Because each of us, in our own disregarded way, is as dismayed as Dizzy. Each of us has some kink in the elbow growing out of some pain in the toe. Not necessarily a physical pang, far more often some disregarded mental quirk which we never dream of associating with our major distresses.

YET IT'S THAT FORGOTTEN OR IGNORED QUIRK WHICH IS RESPONSIBLE FOR MOST OF OUR HUMAN MISERY . . . THAT UNHAPPY HANGOVER FROM OUR CHILDHOOD WHICH STILL SIDETRACKS OUR MATURITY.

Take, for example, that difficulty you have in meeting strangers. How often you've wished you were a good mixer in the office, a gracious hostess in the home. How often you've been penalized because you weren't! As Dizzy was penalized for the kink in his elbow, yet never dreamed of connecting it with his sore toe!

THERE'S A SORE TOE IN EVERY HUMAN LIFE—SOME SECRET HANDICAP THAT HOLDS US BACK, CRAMPS OUR STYLE, DESTROYS OUR BATTING AVERAGE, AND MOST OF US WONDER HELPLESSLY WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT . . . AND WHYFORE THESE SENSELESS, UNREASONABLE BLUNDERS WHICH BESET OUR PATHS.

Don't kid yourself! There's a reason for every mistake. Hidden deep in your heart, there's the demoralizing mark of some old hurt or humiliation, grief or fear which you've never shaken off. You think you have outlived that pang, but you haven't. As surely as a bruised toe finds outlet for its poison in an inflamed elbow, so surely the hurt heart expresses its misery in countless false gestures and erratic acts.

LOOK OUT FOR THOSE FORGOTTEN SORE TOES! DIG IN, CLEAN UP THOSE NEGLECTED TOXIC CENTERS WHICH YOU HAVE SO LONG NEGLECTED! DON'T NURSE THAT GROUCH FOR ANOTHER MONTH . . . DON'T CODDLE THAT SENSE OF INFERIORITY. THEY MAY SEEM TRIVIAL NOW, BUT SOME DAY, UNLESS YOU CLEAN THEM OUT, THEY'LL KNOCK YOU FOR A LOOP! ASK DIZZY!

Timely Editorial

Not a War Party.

In a statement issued recently by 30 educators, lawyers, writers and businessmen, demand was made that the United States enter the war immediately on the side of the Allies. Frank Miles, editor of the Iowa Legionnaire, official publication of the state department of the American Legion, adopted a unique method of commenting.

He sent the following questionnaire to each member of the group backing the war appeal:

"What fighting did you do in the last war?"

"Are you now of an age and physical and mental fitness which would enable you to do military service?

"If you could not be in our armed forces, how many of your sons would be?

"If we go to war now, what would you have our men fight with?"

One can imagine a twinkle in the eyes of the editor as he framed these questions. Yet he was seriously representing the sentiment of the organization for which his paper is spokesman.

Those who think the American Legion is a war party are wrong. Detroit News.

Ohio Anecdotes

Ohio Nominated Lincoln.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN owed his presidential nomination on the fourth ballot at Chicago May 16, 1860, to the four votes cast by Ohio delegates.

William H. Seward of New York and Lincoln were clearly the leading contenders on the first ballot. Lincoln trailed by 181 to Seward's 184 on the second.

The third ballot showed Lincoln lacking four votes of the required two-thirds majority, with Seward polling 180 to Honest Abe's 231.

An Ohio delegate from Cleveland then for the first time abandoned Ohio's native son, Salmon P. Chase, to rise and declare for Lincoln. After the Ohio votes were registered, other delegates followed suit, and the nomination went to the Illinois congressman.

Patient Training Helps Cripples.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE humanitarian trend is one of the encouraging things about modern medicine. Not so much startling discoveries or sweeping methods of cure, but the patient application of help. People who twenty-five years ago would have been dismissed or shunted into the general catalogue of incurables, are now being studied and aided by intelligent special groups of workers. They may not be 100 per cent curable, but it has been found that even apparently the most hopeless can be helped and at least given a new viewpoint on life.

One of the most distressing forms of crippling is the so-called spastic paralytic, whose nervous system has been injured at birth so that he cannot coordinate his muscular movements. We see these cripples everywhere, lurching and stumbling along the street with slurred and unmanageable speech. Mentally they are, in most instances, quite alert, but their plight gives an entirely false impression in this respect.

Training Is Slow.

They cannot be entirely cured because nerve cells once destroyed can never be restored, but areas of the nervous system which are still intact can often take up the work of the damaged sections, and be trained to do some of the useful work in life. They have to be trainly slowly and carefully to make certain muscular movements and it is found that with this training they often can do so.

In a case of this kind, a mother taught her spastic son to move first one finger and then another. It was slow work, hour after hour. After the fingers she moved to the arms, the toes, and the feet. Eventually she transformed him from an almost helpless, lurching cripple to a human being who had about 50 per cent control over his movements.

At the Neurologic Institute in New York, a special clinic held for these unfortunates, teaches them slowly to make purposeful movements. They are taught to walk by focusing their vision on a chalk line on the floor or a painted point in the distance. A story related of one case is of a boy who was not able to walk at all until one day the clinic doctor, to his surprise, found him walking pretty well and noticed that he had on white shoes. The way his feet stood out to his eyes taught him how to use them.

Doctor Osler said once that "Most of us walk by faith." A great many cripples have to walk by sight but that is better than not walking at all.

In many faults—stammering, mental defectiveness, hard of hearing, this sort of training is bringing gratifying results."

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

PHILADELPHIA—There was something to that sensational story that Alf Landon conferred with Senator Burt Wheeler the day before the convention opened, but they didn't discuss the subject generally reported.

According to the story, Alf propositioned the Montana Democrat about taking a place on the Republican ticket; and John L. Lewis, Wheeler booster, was said to be in on the pow-wow.

Nothing like that occurred, and Lewis had nothing to do with it.

Sunday afternoon, during a jaunt on the yacht of a newspaper publisher, Landon told about the hot conflict raging between isolationists and the pro-Ally bloc in his subcommittee on the controversial foreign affairs plank. He expressed the personal opinion that the plank should lean definitely toward isolation.

Then someone recalled that Senator Wheeler had just threatened to bolt the Democratic party if it took a warlike stand, and suggested that it might be fruitful to get his opinion on what the GOP plank should contain.

Landon thought this an excellent idea, and on the way back to Philadelphia telephoned Wheeler in Washington. They had a general talk about a foreign affairs plank, but nothing was said about the possibility of the Montanan jumping the traces to the Republicans. The whole purpose of the talk was a little missionary work in the hope of producing results later.

Note—Those questions Landon asked John L. Lewis before the resolutions committee, opening the way for him to blast Roosevelt, were arranged in advance. Landon had sent them to the CIO leader two days before with a note asking if he would care to answer them. Lewis' reply was an emphatic "Yes."

Willkie and Lewis.

SOME time ago Wendell Willkie and John L. Lewis had a secret dinner together in New York, and strange as it seems, found themselves in agreement on almost everything. The chief point they disagreed on was Franklin Roosevelt, Lewis damning him so bitterly that Willkie finally came to his defense.

At first the two men sat around each defending his own interests. Lewis attacked the Morgans for running the utilities. Willkie told how he had had J. P. Morgan partners on his board of directors for years and never heard a peep from them.

Lewis rejoined with a story of how when he was settling anthracite coal strikes, he would negotiate for weeks until he thought the thing was all settled, and then the coal operators always would have to consult Jackson Reynolds of the First National bank of New York.

"Sure," shot back Willkie, "but that was anthracite, a dead industry."

Later, Willkie and Lewis warmed up to each other and began to discuss means of reducing unemployment through cooperation between government and industry. Willkie even agreed on a rather radical program of government loans to small business such as under the Mead bill.

Morgans Delighted.

HOWEVER, on the subject of Roosevelt, John L. Lewis got so vituperative that Willkie finally defended the president's record, saying it was not as black as Lewis painted it.

After dinner, Lewis took aside Morris Ernst, the host, and said that the ideas for economic improvement they had discussed should not be wasted. Willkie, overhearing him, proposed that they get together to see if they could work out an economic program which would get the co-operation of both labor and capital.

To this end, Morris Ernst later went to see Russell Leffingwell, a J. P. Morgan partner, and related what had happened. Leffingwell was enthusiastic over more labor-business co-operation.

"This is a golden opportunity," he said. This is something Roosevelt can't do, because people are too sore at him. And the Republicans can't do it, because they aren't going to change a thing. But a few mixed dinners like this can do it. You ought to have some more parties like this."

However, war issues became intensified shortly afterward, and domestic issues were forgotten in the melee.

Merry-Go-Round.

WILLKIE foes certainly played for all it was worth the fact that the day the convention opened, Thomas W. Lamont, principal J. P. Morgan stockholder, and Frank Altschul, of Lazard Freres, secretly conferred with influential delegates in behalf of Willkie. . . . Senator Bob Taft is unfailingly patient and accommodating to photographers and they think he is a "swell guy," but he makes no secret of his relief when they finally depart. . . . Tall, aloof Mrs. Russell Davenport, wife of the former Fortune editor who discovered Willkie as a presidential white hope, is called "The Duchess" by her friends. . . . Tall, blond Governor Harold Stassen scored with the ladies in the audience. The young Minnesotan made a striking picture under the glare of the floodlights delivering his keynote speech. . . . Quipped Jimmy Shay, crack former Washington correspondent, to Leo Casey, ex-GOP publicity director now doing the same old job for the New York fair, "If Hitler and Roosevelt would only lay off for a few days, this convention would have a chance at the headlines."

French Fascists.

WASHINGTON—Inside diplomatic cables from what is left of France report that the real forces in the Bordeaux government are ex-Premier Pierre Laval and his close friend Boudin, governor of the Bank of Indo-China.

Laval is now one of the leading pro-Fascists in France and one of the most vigorous critics of Britain. In fact, the entire cabinet inclines toward the Fascist point of view, beginning with Marshall Petain, who was once picked as ambassador to Fascist Spain because of his sympathies. M. Chiappe, who now governs Paris, was formerly chief of police, with avowed Fascist tendencies.

Last Strawberries

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY WIFE and I drove to a neighbor's to buy strawberries. It had rained all night. Clouds hung above the valley in two-layer formation. The gray lower layer was thin and scudding. It moved to the east and revealed behind and beyond it, great rolling banks of white thunderheads on which the sunlight played. Valleys and hills were gray with mist. Water clung to every grass-blade.

"The rain has spoiled the berries," said my neighbor's wife. "There won't be many more. You can go to the patch and look for yourself, though I doubt if you'll find any"—but she gave me five quart baskets.

We drove a little farther and stopped the car while another shower came and went. We watched gray waves of rain sweep over the valley, and spoke of how comfortable a car is during a storm. When the sun came out, I climbed a high bank and departed across the orchard to find the berry patch, calling back that if I did not soon return, she would know I had found picking.

The high grass along the old worm fence wet me to the knees. Orchard branches, redolent of spray, brushed mostly against my face. I went over the hill, behind the orchard, where it joined the woods. Here the strawberries grew. Strong wind roared through the tops of oak and beech, but the clearing was quiet. A bobwhite bade me welcome. I dropped four baskets at the end of a row and went along to where a clump of dark thick leaves showed possibility of late fruit. Beneath the wet leaves red berries clung in a fragrant cluster. I began to fill my basket.

The odors of wet woods and dead ripe fruit . . . the roar of the wind . . . the warmth of the sun upon my skin . . . the moving shadows of windblown clouds . . . the give of the warm steaming earth! I looked at my heaped up measure of scarlet fruit and smiled.

Then I saw that a woman knelt at the end of the row. My wife had come down the hill so quietly that I had not known it. Her shoes and stockings, like my own, were wet. She was intent upon her task, with no thought of me—her basket was already half filled. Yet, for us both, there was a strange completeness and an added joy because the other one was there.

"When did you come?" I asked.

"I saw wild strawberries overhanging the bank and couldn't resist going after them. Then I followed your trail . . . Isn't this fun?"

Let's do Business as usual

UNTIL UNCLE SAM WANTS US TO DO SOMETHING ELSE!

THINK AMERICANISM—talk it—but at the same time let's go ahead with business in the good American way.

That, too, is a practical and patriotic duty. When Uncle Sam wants us to do something else he'll tell us, and we'll do it promptly. But meanwhile let's attend to business.

OUR EMOTIONS are stirred today, naturally. We're that kind of people. But there's no cause for hysteria. All we need is cool, calm thinking and action. We can still go about our business with confidence and assurance, and in doing so add vitally to the might and resources of our country.

SO HERE ARE two vitally helpful things we can do for America right now. We can keep business moving—and we can challenge the foreign "isms" which have invaded our land.

These "isms" are here. They're at work under cover attacking our form of government and our American institutions. These secret enemies are few among our many millions, but they are a dangerous few. Doubly dangerous because they pretend to be friends.

THESE ENEMIES try to tell us there's something better than the American way. Ask them what it is, and where! Speak up! Ask them where in all the world any people enjoy the individual rights, privileges and opportunities that belong to every American. Ask them what people, anywhere, live as well and have as much as "We, the People" of the United States!

AMERICANS want more from life than any other people—and get it—because the opportunity is here. We want more than the necessities of life. We want and have what most of the outside world regards as luxuries.

We want education, leisure, comfortable homes, electric lights, telephones, radios—and most Americans have them. And, we want automobiles, too—and countless other comforts and conveniences.

IN MOST COUNTRIES an automobile is a luxury. Not so, in America. There is one automobile in America for every four persons; in Italy, one for every 93 persons; in Russia one for every 252 persons; in Japan one for every 389 persons. America has only 7% of the world's population—yet 68% of the world's automobiles are in use in the United States.

Considering the automobile merely as indicative of the American standard of living, there can be but one answer. No people, anywhere, live as well or have as much as we.

ALL OF THESE comforts and conveniences are ours because of American genius, opportunity and energy. They spring from our ideals and institutions. They are ours, and will continue to be ours—but, only as we defend them.

Until now we haven't fully realized the attack being made upon us by the advocates of foreign "isms." But now that we do realize it, at least part of the danger is gone. Our job now is to know the American way, to appreciate it, to speak up for it.

And at the same time, calmly and with confidence, lend new strength to America and its resources by doing business as usual. When something else is wanted Uncle Sam will let us know.

Where Else but in America

COMMISSIONER SAYS WHOOPING COUGH SPREADS

Dr. Rehder Urges Parents to Guard Against Disease Throughout County.

With a sharp increase in the number of cases of whooping cough in the county, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, today warned parents to guard their children against the disease.

The warning was issued from the commissioner's home where he is confined with a back injury as the result of a fall two weeks ago

Dr. Rehder said there is a total of 72 active cases of whooping cough in the county. Forty-three are in the city and 29 in other parts of the county. Last June not a single case was reported to the health department.

The commissioner said the spread of the disease, which has increased since the close of school, is probably due to some extent in failure of parents to report the disease as required by the state laws.

This, he explained, offers an opportunity of the disease to spread while the child is exhibiting symptoms of what may be considered a mere cold or cough.

Parents' attention was called to the fact that whooping cough is the most serious of communicable diseases in children under one year of age.

Health department records show 195 cases of whooping cough have been reported in the county since Jan. 1. This more than a 200 per cent increase over last year's figures when only 60 cases had been reported during the six months' period.

BREAK LINE

Workers' Cars Crash Through Lakewood Pickets.

CLEVELAND —(U P)— Three union pickets and two policemen were injured at the strike-bound Precision Castings company in suburban Lakewood when nonstrikers drove two automobiles through a picket line massed at the plant entrances

The pickets received skinned legs and bruises. Policemen Charles Vokoun and Eugene Smith reported bruised legs suffered when they were brushed by the cars

Observers said the cars entered the company property in a shower of stones thrown from the crowd of 75 pickets and sympathizers Both machines were said to have wheeled through a group of 20 pickets in the plant driveway without slackening normal speed.

Several other cars were reported to have turned away when strike sympathizers blocked the driveway with their own autos.

The strike was called Monday by tthe National Association of Die Casters (CIO) to enforce demands for a signed agreement to cover 180 workers in the Lakewood plant and 760 others in Precision plants in New York state.

Lakewood plant officials said that operations were continuing in the plant despite union claims the strike is nearly 100 per cent effective.

INDOOR PICNIC ENDS YW CAMP

The picnic which marked the end of the Y. W. C. A daytime camp was hastily re-arranged this morning and the site shifted from South park to the rooms of the Y. W. building.

In spite of the storm more than 20 youngsters braved the downpour and were at the building at 9 a. m and by noon there was a big representation.

They brought their lunches and sat on the floor, pretending it was the ground and that the floor lamps were trees. There were first aid and woodcraft demonstrations and a pageant as scheduled, but the archery tournament had to be discarded. The indoor picnic ended three weeks of daytime camp.

Gone With Wind Has New Meaning For Kent Rummel

Kent Rummel, president of the Kent Rummel Coal company, is out a considerable sum of money because of his absent mindedness, but refuses to say how much.

Last Saturday afternoon, after the day's business was closed he had a quantity of checks and currency In a hurry and "too tired to go to the bank," he stuck it all down in the waste paper basket in a bunch of paper. And then he forgot all about it!

He didn't remember it until Monday morning when he came to the office—and saw the janitor put the empty basket down after having burned the waste paper.

The checks, of course, can be re-issued, but the currency was merely a pile of ashes stirred by the wind From now on "Gone With the Wind" will be something more than a popular American novel to Rummel

LEGION PLANS TRAINING OF CIVIL TROOPS

Nationwide Army of Unarmed Soldiers Proposed By War Veterans.

(By Associated Press)

BALTIMORE — A nationwide civilian army, unarmed but otherwise completely mitilarized, was proposed today by American Legion officials who disclosed detailed plans had been drawn to organize battalions in every city.

Units organized and drilled according to army regulations would be formed under American Legion auspices, and be staffed by officers from the Legion's ranks. Citizens from 18 years of age up would be eligible "recruits" in the army outlined as an aid to the national defense.

The program was submitted to the national executive committee after being laid before army, navy and government officials, and was disclosed here after Maryland Legionnaires objected to it, some assailing it as "fascistic," and "dangerous" as it might create a potential "bund' organization.

The Legion's national commander, Raymond J. Kelly of Detroit, said at Norfolk, Va., that announcement of the proposal was a "breach of faith"

"The national executive committee has not had time to consider the proposal," he said.

Shower Held for Miss Inga Wolf Who Will Wed In Early Fall, Misses Kathryn Pfaff, Ruth Zelenka, Whisler Feted.

WITH this week-end by far the most popular of the month for weddings, the calendars of Mansfield's young women has been jammed with a series of post-nuptial affairs for brides-elect. Several parties were held last night.

A miscellaneous shower honored Miss Inga Wolf at the home of Miss Betty Elrod, Clover avenue. Miss Gertrude Metzger was associate hostess, and the pair gave the honoree an electrical gift and a bedspread.

Miss Wolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wolf, Trimble road, will become the bride of Edwin Lush on Oct. 12.

Games were played and refreshments served at a long table decorated with garden flowers and pink and white appointments.

Mrs. C B. Todd, 400 Park avenue west, entertained in honor of Miss Kathryn Pfaff, who will become the bride of her nephew, William Todd, on July 21, last night. The wedding will take place at the Todd home at 3:30 p. m.

The evening was spent making a bride's book, and a buffet luncheon was served. The small tables at which the guests were seated were decorated with an arrangement of garden flowers and candles.

The final pre-nuptial party honoring Miss Ruth Zelenka, bride-elect of R. Wayne Sutton, was given yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. David Martin, 568 Coleman road. Mrs. David C. Martin of Ashland and Mrs. Wilbur Upson were associate hostesses for the affair, which was a miscellaneous shower.

Bridge was played at three tables during the evening, and Miss Rita Newcomer won the high score award, which she presented to the honoree, who was the recipient of the second prize. Shower gifts from the guests were hidden about the home, and Miss Zelenka was directed to them by little verses. The hostesses gave her a gift for the kitchen.

A two-course luncheon was served at a long table centered with a basket of blue and yellow garden flowers. Yellow tapers tied with blue tulle bows lighted the table.

Members of the wedding party will be entertained with a buffet supper this evening at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Zelenka, 52 Summit street. The wedding rehearsal will follow at the Central Methodist church, where Miss Zelenka and Mr. Sutton will be married at 4.30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Nuptial music for the open church ceremony will begin at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Mary Whisler feted her daughter, Mary Margaret, with a bathroom shower yesterday evening at her home, 127 North Benton street. The honoree will become the bride of Robert Dodson tomorrow morning at the parsonage of St. Peter's Catholic church.

Bridge was the diversion at three tables, and prizes were awarded to Miss Ruth Baum and Mrs. Sue Whisler, who gave them to the honoree, Martha Ann and Buddy Whisler, niece and nephew of the bride-elect, presented her with the shower gifts from the guests.

Mrs. Whisler gave her daughter a quilted silk comfort in honor of the occasion. A two-course luncheon was served at a long table, decorated with a miniature wedding scene, pink and white roses, and white tapers tied with pink and blue ribbons.

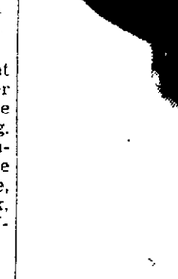
Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

MOST FOLKS' minds are whirling with thoughts of train schedules, road maps, wardrobe trunks and travel kits—they're that busy with vacations. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Touby are leaving this week-end for a motor trip west. . . . Stopping off at various places of interest, their travels will take them to Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak and Denver—while on July 4, they're planning to attend a ski tournament at St. Mary's glacier. . . . They'll take in the Frontier Days celebration in Cheyenne, Wyo., and visit the national parks, then drive on to California to visit in Los Angeles and San Francisco before returning east in about six weeks.



Marianne

Headed in the opposite direction for their vacations are several other Mansfielders. . . . Harold McCuen left yesterday for a ten-days trip through New York state and Pennsylvania, visiting summer and children's theaters. . . . He's planning to attend the Mohawk Festival at Schenectady and the Mountain playhouse at Jennerstown, Pa. . . . Mrs. G. F. Altaffer and her daughter, Dorothy, have gone to New Hampshire for their vacation. . . . Mrs. O. H. Schettler and her sons, Dick and Jack, are in New York City this week visiting the World fair and other spots of interest—while there, they're stopping at the Beekman Tower hotel.

Their Mansfield friends will be pleased to learn that Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Houston of Warren are the proud parents of a son, whom they've named Joseph Garfield. . . . Mrs. Houston, you know, was formerly Gretchen Crider of this city and a teacher at Hedges school. . . . Her husband is manager of the City Loan in Warren.

* * *

HAVE you seen Marian Cope since she returned from her vacation? Well, you should, because she's wearing a beautiful diamond ring on that very important finger of her left hand. . . . She received the ring from Frank M. Steckel of Nazareth, Pa., when she was visiting in that city with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kelly are leaving today to drive their daughter, Janet, and her friend, Gloria Herbol of Erie, Pa., to Chautauqua, N. Y., where the girls will join a group of college girls to assist Mrs. Genevieve Robinson at the Hotel New Yorker there for the summer theater season—attractions of which will include Wayne King's orchestra and Grace Moore. . . . Janet is planning to enter Miami university at Oxford in September.

* * *

The morning mail brought an interesting letter from Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Winbigler, who are vacationing at Jasper park lodge at Jasper national park in the Canadian Rockies. . . . According to Mrs. Winbigler, the place is a paradise, and the cottage where they're staying is just a few doors from the one in which King George VI and Queen Elizabeth stayed while touring the country last year. . . . The Winbiglers will go to Vancouver, B. C., before returning home.

* * *

LAKE ERIE has beckoned Annabelle Strong and Jennie Settembrino, who are spending their week's vacation at Miltwanga beach. . . . And speaking of lakes, Mrs. Leo Hunt entertained members of her pinochle club with a two-day sojourn at her cottage at Lakeville this week. . . . Mrs. Hazel McCartney, Mrs. Chrissie McCartney, Mrs. Ann Ferguson, Mrs. Irene Brollier and Margaret McLean were in Toledo yesterday attending the state convention of the Daughters of Scotland at the Hotel Commodore Perry.

* * *

Happily for us, there are some former residents visiting in the city just now. . . . Mrs. Robert Glassner (whom you probably remember better as Jean Gorman) and her young son, who reside in Milwaukee, Wis., are guests at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gorman. . . . Mrs. Lillian Kelley is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Maude Walters of Salt Lake City, Utah, another former resident who is here for her first visit in a number of years. . . . Mrs. Russell Myer (you remember, she was Jean Small before her marriage) arrived in town yesterday afternoon from Los Angeles, Cal., for her first visit since moving there. . . . She plans to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Small. . . . By the way, Jean's husband is chief engineer of the American Gas association in Los Angeles.

OHIO State Reformatory Superintendent Arthur L. Glatzke, his wife and their young son, Arthur, jr., left yesterday to drive to the northern peninsula of Michigan, where they will spend ten days. . . . Exadine Selby, who has completed her freshman year of studies at Wittenberg college in Springfield is visiting with a Chi Omega sorority sister of hers, Florence Jackson in Bridgeport this week. . . . She will return home early next week to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Selby, who, incidentally, have just moved into a country home east of the city.

Treatment For Swollen Eye Tissue

By MME. QUI VIVE

If there is anything that will make a woman spit-fire mad it is to awaken in the morning with swollen tissues under her eyes. She feels that the autumn of life is upon her. Though she may be a lady of respectability, she carries a look of dissipation.

Not always evidence of kidney disorders, these blemishes sometimes are inherited. Intestinal disturbances will cause them. To some beauty sufferers they are the penalty paid for fatigue and loss of sleep. Seeking out the cause isn't always easy. The best means of getting after them is to map out an organized existence, endeavor to attain a balance of activity and relaxation, get eight hours of sleep every night and keep to a diet that is free of foods that are likely to upset the stomach.

Drinking five or six glasses of water a day has been found an effective remedy. Few women drink as much water as the body needs for proper elimination of waste products. Take a glass before breakfast, the others at any time.

Alternating applications of hot and cold water will relax swollen tissues. Don't use small pads; they don't cover enough skin surface. Use a heavy washcloth.

Dip it in water as hot as the flesh can bear comfortably. Hold it close with flattened fingers; keep it there while you count thirty. Apply a cold compress, and count thirty. Then repeat. Dry the skin gently with little bits of a soft towel. Dip your fingers in a light cream, massage outward over the upper lid, starting at the inner corner of the eye, do a little circle on the temple, come back under the eye to the starting point.

Finish with a brisk friction with an ice cube. You can use it "raw" or wrap it in gauze.

In the morning apply cold water, then sponge the skin surface with witch hazel.

Women who get little exercise are liable to have swollen tissues, possibly because the blood streams aren't busy enough. A brisk walk every day is a help in the treament of many a beauty ill. Maintain a brisk pace. Sauntering does nothing to tone the muscles and has no vitalizing effect at all.

Keep to a fairly light diet for awhile. Not much meat, plenty of fruits, vegetables and green salads.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

For the fraction of a second which seemed an eternity, I sat staring at Lillian, trying to realize what she had just told me. Then I sprang up with hand outstretched in what I already knew was futile protest.

"No!" I almost shrieked. "They mustn't. They'll be killed!"

"And the chance of that will hold both of them back," Lillian said, her voice heavy with irony. "Now, remember, I may be wrong in this. I hope I am. But—your father can't go, and you know our men are not the kind to send outsiders when the issue affects their own families. Noblesse oblige, and all that sort of thing, you know. I'm afraid it's rather certain that they're going."

"And without saying a word to us!" I said dully.

"I imagine that's their plan," Lillian assented. "They probably minimize the danger, and magnify our worries and the objections we might voice. They figure they will be gone but an hour, and I imagine they'll leave a highly imaginative message for us, calculated to lull our suspicions of where they've gone."

I stood silently, with rigid muscles and clenched palms while she talked. Then I spoke three words with cold steely determination.

"I'm going, too."

I had expected opposition, but curiously enough, she only voiced a query.

"You're sure? Have you thought of the children?"

But I was beyond even that appeal, caught up in an unreasoning fear of Dicky's being taken away from me forever.

"Dicky isn't thinking of them," I said. "And I—I can't help this, Lillian. I'm going!"

She eyed me with an inscrutable expression.

"I ought to hog tie you to the sofa with a gag in your mouth," she said, "but I sort of hoped you'd emit something like that. I'll go with you. But how can we get a car out? They'll be getting out themselves right away, and they'll see us."

"Jim!" I said. "He'll turn the trick, but I haven't time to explain now. Will you get our hats, motor coats, our small silencer pistols, and, yes, an adequate first aid kit from Katharine—you can explain a bit to her, and come directly to the kitchen afterward?"

"I'll be down there in less than five minutes," she said, and, lost to everything but the cold determination that obsessed me, I went to the kitchen, finding Katie still vening her wrath upon Jim.

"Katie!" I said melodramatically, "I have a task for you which may save lives. Will you promise me to do exactly as I ask you, and not to look out of the window even if Jim goes away?"

She struck a theatrical attitude and "crossed her heart" with gusto.

"Me, I svear," she said. "I nefer tell nobody nuddings, und I nefer look even sidevays at windows."

"See that you don't," I said. "Now run up to your rooms and bring me down two old caps of Jim's and two long overcoats, one can be a rain coat, and two neck scarves. Quickly now!"

She was at the kitchen door leading to the back straiway before I had finished speaking.

"Don't look into the upper hall while you're up there!" I adjured her.

"Nevaire!" she flung back, and I turned to Jim, who was watching me appraisingly.

"Jim," I said, "since this seige began, you often drive the station wagon across the fields to Ticers for supplies, don't you? Have you gone there yet today?"

"No, not yet," he replied. "I was going pretty soon."

"Where do you bring the car?"

"With its rear doors as close to the kitchen doors as I can get it," he said.

"Then please bring it there now," I said.

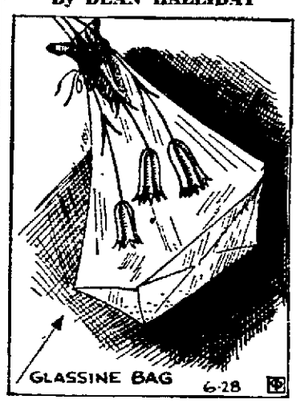
Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY



Bagging Seeds In the Garden.

Many amateur horticulturists enjoy collecting seeds from choice flowers in their own gardens. When seed collecting is planned the smaller blossoms should be removed from selected plants. This enables these plants to throw all their energy into the formation of seeds on the remaining blossoms. Seeds should be taken only from the best blossoms.

One very good method of collecting seeds is to cover the flower heads with a glassine bag, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The bag will keep the birds away from the seeds, and also prevents the seeds from falling to the ground, or being blown away by winds. If the seeds drop they are caught and held by the bag.

As a general rule it is best to sow perennial seeds as soon as they have rippened. It should be remembered, however, that seeds collected in the home garden often do not come to true color, due to cross-pollinization.

Sensible Attitude Taken

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS Ph. D.

Most will like the following, I certainly do.

"Dear Dr. Myers: There seems to be a plethora of articles in the current magazines upon the subject of the understanding or misunderstanding of children by parents, and vice versa, particularly adolescent children and their problems. In the first place, it seems to me that the problem is much more deep-seated than that and has its beginnings in babyhood. I believe that if parents build the proper foundation from the beginning, including necessary discipline, that adolscence won't present too many problems which can't be solved.

"I am speaking in the light of my own experience, both past and present. I was married at nineteen and a baby daughter was born a year later. Two years ago, we had a son, and so we feel well on the road to parenthood with a daughter of 5½ years and a boy of two.

"I went to high school and the state university and although I had a grand time, I don't feel that any of my experiences—at least not many—were any that I wouldn't care to have my daughter indulge in. I don't drink or smoke—never have cared about it

Cause and Effect.

"Right now, and since the very beginning, our children are learning the law of 'cause and effect.' For instance, Anne is perfectly free to visit her friends in the neighborhood provided she tells me where she is going and returns when I tell her to. If she doesn't she spends the next day in her own yard. She dries the dishes and vacuums the living-room rug every morning, and receives an allowance of 10 cents a week

"She can prepare herself for school with no assistance and sets the table frequently. I expect to increase her allowance gradually, until by the time she is in high school she will be buying her own clothes (and accepting more responsibility) . . .

"I'm young (always since I was small, I wanted to get married young and have my children young). I have a personality of my own which I don't intend to let die (I enjoy handicraft, bridge, picnics, swimming, skating, skiing), and a family is poor indeed when the individuals in it demand more than they are willing to give.

Won't Indulge Whims.

"Too many parents make slaves and doormats of themselves, and where does it get them? Our children have most (not all) of the things children like to make them happy, but I don't intend to go without some necessity just to indulge my children's whims.

"And I know what it is to work hard too. After Betty was born Mr. —— went away to teach summer school and I was left with everything — washing, ironing, cleaning, gardening, cutting the grass, everything. It was hard, and I don't know how I did it. The only help I've had at any time has been for the first two weeks after the second baby was born. I'm none the worse for the experience, and I'm sure it did me a lot of good.

I'll be young enough to remember how I felt and acted at that tender age, and I hope Anne will feel free to bring her problems to me. It will be such fun to do things together and we're doing that now too. In the meantime I hope I'm not overlooking any of her character development. I answer all her questions as accurately as possible, stand by to give her needed encouragement or punishment, read to her every night before bed. In short, I hope I'm doing everything a good parent should do without submerging her own personality."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HARK! DANGER SIGNALS!

Air raid alarms have been devised for the best interests of the community. They would be of no value if nobody paid heed to them, but instead everybody ran out into the open streets to watch the excitement. That would be just what the enemy would love, and therefore they seldom have such an effect. The same kind of warnings go unheeded, however, in the mimic war which is bridge. Plenty of players keep right on in the face of danger signals to unnecessary defeats.

Both North and East advertised to South the fact that West had a lot of hearts, but South was not listening. He could have reasoned it all out. North showed enough diamonds and clubs to bid both of those suits—in fact, a very large number of them, or otherwise he would never have taken out South's business double of spades.

East made it clear to any careful kibitzer that he not only had enough spades to bid them, plus enough clubs to double that suit, but that he also held enough diamonds to double them. Had he not held a sizeable number of diamonds, he should not have doubled clubs. In consequence of having so many spades, clubs and diamonds, he could not have held more than perhaps one heart, and possibly none.

Since North's bidding of the two suits proclaimed that he hadn't enough hearts to support his partner's suit, it should have been clear to South that they could be nowhere except bunched in West's hand. Over East's double of 3-Clubs, he should have bid only 3-Hearts. Maybe West would have doubled this and maybe he would not. In any event, though, the play that developed would have set this contract one trick, not two.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, June 29.

A day of difficulty, doubt and discord may develop, with excitement and rash action, as portended from the predominant planetary aspects. Should there be some sudden and untoward group action, menacing safety and business progress, it would be well to refrain from strife, reckless or violent conduct.

Those whose birthday it is have before them a year in which certain perplexing, doubtful and conflicting situations may demand much personal restraint with calm consideration and management of dangerous, difficult and probably violent situations. This might arise in involvement in some sort of perilous group or mob action. Impetuous, passionate and unguarded choice of written word or speech might precipitate disagreeable entanglements.

A child born on this day lay, although talented in marked or unusual degree, versatile and forceful, yet may be tempestuous, passionate, impetuous and intemperate in written word, act and speech, thus inviting self-defeat, unless early disciplined.

Lashes Can Be Improved

By MME. QUI VIVE

There's witchery in long silky eyelashes. The girl who is blessed with them knows well enough that she has beauty wealth. And she knows how to use them when the best feller is around. But that's fair play. Why not?

If your fairy godmother forgot to kiss you in your cradle and wish upon you those pretty eyelashes, don't get in a fret about it. A good deal can be done to increase the growth if one is patient. The trouble with almost all beautifying ventures is that the campaigner for better appearance is not perservering. Unless she sees results in short order she falls off the beauty wagon.

When you have used your cold cream at night for removing makeup, have at hand a bottle of mineral oil. Apply this lubricant to your silky winkers, stroking back and forth along the edge of the eyelid. The movement should be gentle. After the application, brush the pretty fuzzers with an eyebrow brush. See that the bristles are kept scrupulously clean. If you don't wash the brush after each application, wrap it in tissues to keep it free from dust.

Have an extra brush for the purpose of applying mascara. Unless the lashes are black, a touch of this harmless darkening agent will improve their appearance. If you use the solid preparation, moisten the brush slightly with water, sweep the lashes upward to give the ends a sassy tilt. Several minutes later make a second application. Don't let the mascara cake on the shafts or form beads; it won't do that if it is properly diluted. Beaded lashes are only for screen or stage makeup.

The cream type of mascara is put on with a dry brush. Be careful not to touch the flesh. Nothing makes a woman look quite as blowsy as eye smudges; you're sure to get them if you attempt to touch up the lower lashes. One single tear and your face will be full of mud puddles.

Loss of lashes is caused by infections of the eyelids. Sties are no help to them. Any woman who suffers from chronic redness of the lids should seek medical advice, not only for the sake of the health of her soul lamps, but to guard against the destruction of the lashes.

Wife Asserts Wendell's Boss of Willkie Household

THRILLED BY NOMINATION OF HUSBAND

Spouse Would Gladly Change Mode of Living to Fit White House.

By JANE COCHRAN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA — Wendell Willkie rules today both as boss of the Republican party and the Willkie household. His tiny, blue-eyed wife is proud on both counts.

"I wouldn't marry a man who wasn't the boss," she said. "I wouldn't have married Wendell if I couldn't have depended on his viewpoints and his ideas."

She's frankly thrilled over his nomination and the whirlwind boom leading to it.

Youthful, spirited, she has a lilt to her voice and a tremendous eagerness about everything she does. Her soft, graying hair curls about her mobile face, framing her enormous blue eyes. Her figure is as slim as a young girl's.

Delight and wholehearted approval were registered on her face as the radio brought news of the pridefully awaited moment.

"He's nominated! He's nominated!" she squealed.

The excitement caught up with her as she tried to analyze her emotions.

"I think I'm too numb to tell you what I think," she confessed.

She'd slipped away from the convention as the ever-growing votes in the Willkie column shifted the handwagon into high gear. Her shyness and modesty won out over her love of excitement and she returned to her hotel to await the news, and her victorious husband.

A wide-brimmed navy straw hat, tilted over one blue eye, and the added help of a pair of dark glasses kept her from being recognized by the Willkie enthusiasts who surrounded her.

"You like the hat?" she asked. "I bought it sight unseen. I just had to have a new hat for the nomination."

A dress of navy print, flecked with white, and trimmed with a small edging of lace at the neck, and navy shoes won her the best-dressed nomination.

She'll be on the Willkie campaign tours "unless they think I'm excess baggage.

"I like to go anywhere with my husband—even just walking down the street with him," she said. The White House?

"I'll tell you how I feel about that after I've done it. I suspect I might like it and like the entertaining."

Flushed and happy she was sitting in the bedroom of a friend's suite where she had fled after seeing the broadcasting equipment that had been installed in her room.

In the midst of the decisive sixth ballot, she telephoned Willkie:

"Wendell, they say I have to go on the radio!" she appealed. Do I?"

"No, you don't, if you don't want to," he reassured her.

But had his answer been "yes," she would have been on the air.

"Just before I was married my mother asked me a question which I thought was very wise," she remarked. "She asked me 'are you willing to go any place and live anywhere under any conditions with Wendell?' She asked me not to answer immediately but to think about it.

"He's never let me down. That's a great recommendation for anyone, isn't it?"

Frankly feminine, Mrs. Willkie admitted she is "forty plus." She married Wendell Wilkie 23 years ago in her home of Rushville, Ind., after a blizzard had delayed Willkie's arrival for two days.

She attended Indiana university for two years where she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She took stenography but her parents frowned on a business career and she became assistant librarian in Rushville. Her mother, Mrs. Phil Wilk, still lives there, and her sister, Mrs. Miller Hamilton, lives in Indianapolis. Her father, a contractor and builder, died a few years ago.

She'll mind giving up her private life but feels no regret at the cause.

"You have to adjust yourself to the conduct of your husband when you marry and this is just another condition," she said.

She got no farther as the door burst open and her excited husband rushed in.

"Darling," he shouted, and buried her in his arms.

She'd gotten her two wishes, the nomination her husband desired and an exciting convention. A week ago, in New York, she wanted an exciting convention.

"I like conventions, particularly if they go more than one ballot," she said. Then "it's more exciting with five or six ballots—just one is no fun."

For her own future, she has this homely, wholesome recipe:

"I'm just going to try to do the best I can."

She probably will do all right.

PRICES DOWN

Auto License Tags to Sell For Fourth Less.

With the close of the first quarter of 1940, the price of truck and automobile license tags will be reduced one fourth, Frank Beverstock, secretary of the Auto club, announced today.

Passenger car tags originally costing $16 will be sold at $12, $10 tags at $7.50, and $7 at $5.25. Truck and trailer tags will be issued at proportionate 25 per cent reductions.

New prices will be effective July 1, Beverstock asserted.

Sheriff, Probing Rackets, Clears School Salesman

Sheriff's deputies investigating a series of complaints that salesmen had defrauded persons of money, said today that their inquiries had cleared one salesman of any connection with such practices.

R. G. Hornberger of 91 East Third street, told the sheriff that he had been circulating in the vicinity of Lucas as a representative of the National School of Electronics of Minneapolis.

A complaint had been received from the Lucas area. A man there had claimed he had lost $37 after signing an agreement with a man representing a Chicago electrical school.

Sheriff's deputies said that credentials Hornberger showed them and that an investigation made by the Chamber of Commerce established that Hornberger was a legitimate salesman for a legitimate concern.

Boy, 9, Confesses He Attempted to Set Fire to Auto

The mysterious attempt to set fire to an automobile owned by James M. Garu, 350 South Main street, Monday, was cleared up today by a nine-year-old boy who confessed to his father that he committed the act because he wanted to be a "hero."

The boy's father told police last night that the youth confessed after he had questioned him about it.

Police had traced down clues concerning the firing of the car while the machine was in a barn. The boy was picked up for questioning but refused to talk to officers.

He was turned over to the custody of his father after officers had reprimanded him.

FILES PROTEST ON SIDEWALKS

Workers Alliance Hits Refusal of State to Approve City's Proposed Program.

After re-electing John Sparks, Mansfield, president of the Richland County Workers Alliance, the organization of WPA workers today protested the refusal of the state WPA headquarters to approve a city-wide sidewalk project.

The organization's resolution states that "funds for the project are available under the 1940-41 WPA appropriation and there is no shortage of skilled or unskilled labor."

In turning down the project, state WPA officials said the federal works appropriation for Ohio had been cut and there was not enough labor available in Mansfield to handle the project in addition to other projects now in operation.

In addition to Sparks, other officers chosen last night by the alliance were Bertha Clark, vice president; Edward Bankhead, corresponding secretary; Charles Miller, financial secretary, and William Parker, sergeant-at-arms.

Sparks was selected to represent the county unit at the national Workers Alliance convention in Chicago July 11-14.

WRITES ABOUT FAMILY'S LIFE IN NEW MEXICO

Author Describes Struggles of Pioneer Woman in New Novel at Library.

A new novel at the Mansfield Public library this week is one by Lorraine Carr, "Mother of the Smiths," which tells of a pioneer woman's struggles in raising a family in New Mexico.

Mrs. Kenneth Horan has written a story about hospital life as seen through the eyes of a convalescing patient. It is entitled, "Night Bell," while another recent fiction book about life in the Kentucky mountains is "Trees of Heaven" by Jesse Stuart.

Both sides of the Communist picture are presented in two non-fiction books at the library. In "I Confess," Benjamin Gitlow tells the reasons for his break with the Communist party, which he one time served as a member of the ruling political committee in this country.

Harry and Rebecca Timbres reveal their reasons for belief and faith in the Communist ideal in their book, "We Didn't Ask Utopia."

Other new fiction includes:

MOTHER OF THE SMITHS by Mrs. Lorraine Carr is a novel of a valiant pioneer who overcomes all odds. Sabe Smith came to Taos, N. M., with her worthless husband, Si, and a few household articles. Through her own strength and ingenuity she built a house, raised four of her sons to maturity, and saw her oldest, Sammy, become a doctor.

NIGHT BELL by Mrs. Kenneth Horan tells about hospital life as a patient sees it. Rose Morgan, a surgeon's wife, spends a long time convalescing after a serious operation and observes much of the drama in the lives about her.

TREES OF HEAVEN by Jesse Stuart is a novel of life in the Kentucky mountains. Stuart's home country. The sweet love story of Tarvin Bushman, son of a hard, thrifty farmer, and Subrinea Tussie, daughter of a lusty, improvident squatter, unfolds against a background of crops and bickerings over land.

CLUE OF THE NAKED EYE by Russell; DEATH TEARS A COMIC STRIP, Du Bois; FLYING COLOURS, Forester.

"I CONFESS" by Benjamin Gitlow, formerly member of the ruling political committee of the American Communist party and of the executive committee and Praesidium of the Communist International, tells the truth about American Communism. After championing the Communist cause for nearly twenty years even while seeing its crude and tricky methods, in 1929 Gitlow faced Stalin in open defiance and refused to follow his dictates. His real break with Communism came in 1934 when he saw Hitler gain power in Germany. He felt that only because of the Communist example did Fascists attempt dictatorships.

Another side of the picture is evident in WE DIDN'T ASK UTOPIA by Harry and Rebecca Timbres. This young Quaker couple with their two daughters lived in Soviet Russia as friends and co-workers with the Communists. They were trying to raise the standard of health by scientific methods. In spite of innumerable difficulties they did not lose faith in their cause or in the Communist ideal.

"DOC'S WIFE" by Faye Cashatt Lewis, M. D. is an interesting account of the life of a doctor's wife in a small community. With a saving sense of humor Mrs. Lewis helped the doctor over many rough spots in his career.

Other non-fiction:

AS THE TWIG IS BENT by Hohman.

LEISURE FOR LIVING, Greenbie.

RETHINKING RELIGION, Holmes.

HOW TO READ THE BIBLE, Love.

BACKGROUND TO MODERN SCIENCE, Needham & Pagel.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Vacation-time brings adventure—to some children. It did indeed for all the children in these two stories. The first is a seashore book with a mystery to solve. The second is a story of the country.

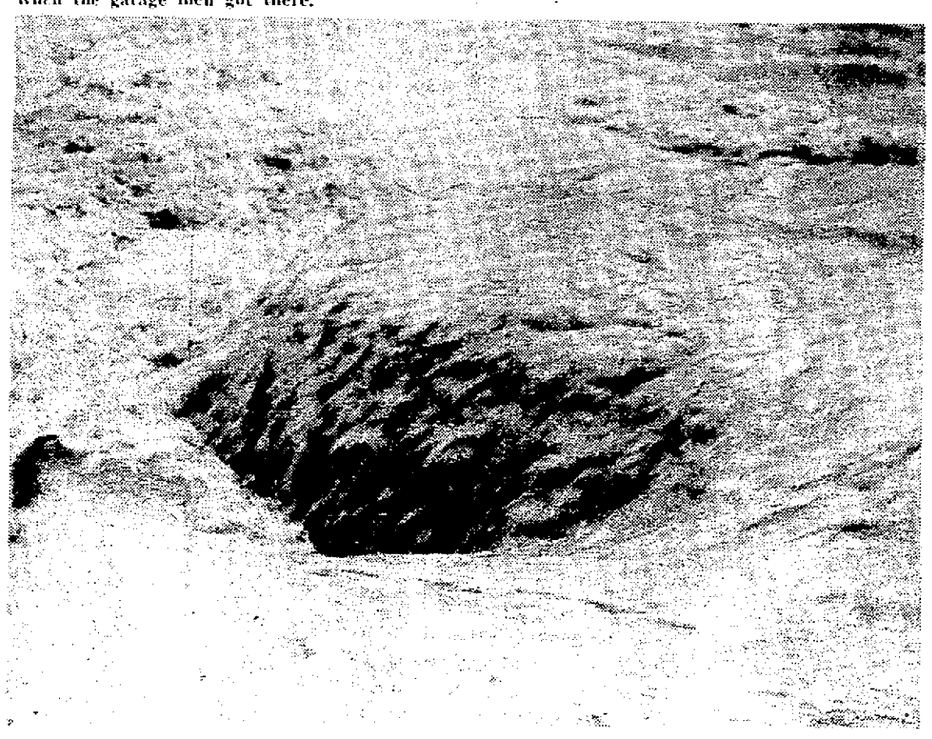
THE MYSTERY AT EAST HATCHETT by Peggy Bacon—Did Dilemma really steal Miss Fiske's brown or poison her cat? Even didn't think so, but for a long time he couldn't prove it. The way he solved the mystery and renewed the friendship of the other children for himself and Dilemma, makes interesting reading for all the older children.

THE HAPPY TOWER by Grace Irwin—This author has given the middle-sized girls many good stories. This one is about a family with six children who lived in an apartment. They really needed a house, and when they found one in the country, it had an attic and a tower. No more needs to be said about the story. The title of the book tells the rest.

The Rains Came--Car's Going, Going, Gone

GOING . . . Paul Lee, 259 Rae avenue, and Robert Miller, R. D. 5, thought it would be an opportune time to wash Paul's car early this morning, so they drove it into Touby's Run, just south of West Fourth street. It started to rain a little after the car was in the creek, so they decided to take a little snooze until the shower had passed.

GOING . . . So they left the windows open and went to sleep. Sometime later the roar of thunder awakened them and looking out they found that "The Rains Came" and Touby's Run had taken on the semblance of the Ohio river. The water was pushing the car gently down stream. They swam "ashore" and called for a wrecker, and the above picture shows how the car looked when the garage men got there.



GONE . . . The water continued to rise and the car started down stream. A garage man swam out and tied a cable to the car and anchored it to a tree, and the waters continued to rise until all that could be seen of the car was a whirlpool in the stream as the water swirled over the top of the submerged auto, as shown in the above picture. The car was still anchored in the stream at noon although the waters were subsiding.

THREE DROWNED IN OHIO RIVER

Two Women And Girl Die When Boat Capsized.

CINCINNATI—(ANS)—Two women and a teen-age girl were dead today after the rowboat in which a party of six attempted to cross the Ohio river at Cincinnati capsized.

The women were Mrs. Joan Flowers, 20, and Mrs. Katherine Flowers, 19. The girl was believed to be Ellanor Weiss, 13.

Ronald Flowers, 24, Joan's husband, saved the four-months-old daughter of his sister-in-law, but was unable to save Joan, who reportedly was a good swimmer. Ronald's brother, Edward, 22, was pulled from the river a quarter-mile downstream, and revived.

F.D.R. Reported Seeking Big Boost In Defense Plans

RECORD FUNDS FOR ARMY USE TO BE ASKED

Armament Bill of Peak World War Year Would Be Shattered.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, it is reported, intends to seek an immense boost in the defense program that would more than double the $5,082,310,080 already appropriated and shatter the arms bill of the peak World war year

Usually well-informed sources said last night that the huge request would be exclusively for army purposes, and that it might be ready for submission when congress returns next week from its recess.

The exact amount of the forthcoming request was not disclosed by the sources, but they did say that if the funds were voted the nation's arms expenditures for the coming fiscal year would surpass that all-time record outlay of $11,011,387,000 for the 12 months beginning July 1, 1918.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was said, will ask congress to make the additional billions available without delay so that the army can place more orders at once for planes, tanks, and other weapons. The projected recommendation also was reported to include provisions for financing expansion of aircraft production and munitions factories construction.

Before the likelihood of a further defense increase was mentioned, President Roosevelt authorized late yesterday the seizure of foreign vessels in American waters if such action was necessary either to protect this nation's interests or the safety of the ships themselves.

The president's action, one high official said, could be interpreted as laying the basis for the possible detention, if necessary, not only of French vessels in American waters but also of shipping owned in other European countries now controlled by Germany.

Invoking a 1917 espionage statute, the chief executive delegated the broad control powers of Secretary Morgenthau, who, as head of the treasury department, directs the coast guard and customs service.

Shows Coming to City Patterned After Big Fairs

Glamor and thrills are promised by the Dodson World's Fair shows which open a week's engagement Monday night at Armory field under the auspices of the Mansfield Building Trades council. The show was originally scheduled for the Bowman street grounds but the change to the Armory field was made today.

Modernistic tented theaters and feature rides resembling those exhibited at the New York and San Francisco world's fairs will be brought to Mansfield on a 40-car train, according to advance notices.

A lively Parisian revue with dancing and singing stars and a show of artists models will be featured on the "fun-way."

Free circus acts will be presented every afternoon and evening through Saturday. Aerial performances, a 115 foot high-dive, and fireworks are also programed.

Among the unusual human oddities featured are Rosa Lee, "the armless wonder girl," who uses a typewriter with her feet; Chief Inferno, "the fire-proof man;" Alzora, "the turtle girl;" Madam Latrex, "the reversible girl;" Jesse Odell who swallows lighted neon tubes; and Dolly Dolores, the 512-pound fat girl.

TACOMA, Wash. —(AP)— Tony Wilson, hotel operator, says lobbies are so somberly quiet these days he was right glad that seven men, standing around a music box, began singing, humming and whistling.

Later he told police.

"When they'd gone I found their noise was just a cover-up. They took the back off the machine and removed the coin box, getting $8."

County Fair Drops Races, Goes 'Streamline'

Right in the middle of the downpour this morning a rural resident near Mansfield called the Richland county commissioners' office and wanted to know what he was going to do about getting out of his farm lot, with the road flooded and water running all over his property. That one stumped Clerk P. S. Carroll who told the man the commissioners would repair his road if it was damaged by the water, but they couldn't do much about holding back the flood. "Anyway, I was wondering for a while how I was going to get to work this morning," the clerk countered.

John Catlett, Republican candidate for county representative, went to the Republican convention in Philadelphia without making arrangements for a room, and as a result came very nearly having to sleep on the curb. A single cabin in a nearby tourist camp was all that saved him. A card to friends today in Mansfield made a brief comment on hotel rates in the convention city. The card pictured the Benjamin Franklin hotel and said "Moderate Prices Prevail." Catlett encircled these words and marked them "Printed B. C. (before convention)."

Boy scouts from the entire Mansfield district will be on hand at the fairground for the July 4th celebration to assist in parking cars, handling first aid cases, and being of service generally. And just to show visitors at the grounds that scouts can be ingenious as well as useful, troops five and six will give a demonstration that comes pretty close to pulling a whole camping outfit out of a scout hat! In this case the "hat" will be a trek cart so constructed that it not only carries all bedding, tents, cooking utensils and miscellaneous equipment necessary for a complete camp set-up, but it also has a built-in bed that can be used as a table for serving meals.

RED CROSS GETS REFUGEE RULES

Mansfielders Wanting to Bring Children Here From England Told of Regulations.

Before Americans can bring English refugee children into America, they must comply with regular immigration laws on passports and quotas and must provide a financial statement to be sent to the American consul in London, according to information received today by the Richland County Chapter of the Red Cross.

In response to a number of requests from Mansfield families on the possibility of bringing English children to this country, Gertrude English, executive secretary of the Red Cross in Mansfield, wrote national headquarters for information.

The English embassy in Washington informed Red Cross that either the American relatives or the English parents of the children must pay transportation and passports must be arranged for in England, and the children must come in under the regular British quota.

Evidence of financial status must be submitted to the American consul in England. People here may make out their own statements, have them notaried and then send them to the parents of the children in England. The parents then submit them to their nearest American consul.

The statements must carry the following information: Names of persons dependent upon the petitioner for support; relationship of such persons to the petitioner; the amount of cash in possession of the petitioner, when and where it is deposited; real estate owned and if encumbered by mortgage; personal property owned.

And the statement must include other statements from an officer of the bank where petitioner has an account; an affidavit from the petitioner's employer which shows the nature of employment and the amount earned; and the report of a commercial rating concern regarding the petitioner and his rating.

Such statements must be prepared in duplicate and sent to England, according to Mrs. English.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Three WPA workers here have refused to sign affidavits disavowing membership in "subversive" organizations, as prescribed for all WPA employes by congress.

Frank T. Miskell, WPA district manager, said the three workers appeared at his headquarters with representatives of the Workers' Alliance, organization of unemployed, to protest the affidavit requirement on the grounds it was detrimental to rights of minority parties.

FIND 'CACHE'

Storage Room Held Stolen Goods, Officials Say.

COLUMBUS —(UP)— City authorities believed today they were untangling slowly the details of the mysterious disappearance of poor relief supplies from the city relief headquarters during the past several months.

Safety Director George Ward and Police Inspector Thomas Scully revealed the discovery of a storage room "hideout" for the pilfered food and articles on the sixth floor of the relief administration building.

The 20 by 10-foot room contained large bags of beans, corn meal and prunes. Investigators believed relief employes cached food and clothing supplies in the room before removing them to their homes.

DECISION SETS PRECEDENT FOR BUCKEYE FAIRS

Lagging Interest in Racing Cited as Reason for Action; Greater Show Promised.

Setting a precedent for Ohio county fairs, the Richland County Agricultural society today announced that harness racing will not be staged at this year's fair and that in its place the board will present what President H. H. Wolf described as a "streamlined fair."

Decision to eliminate racing was made because patronage was not sufficient to justify the expenditure of hundreds of dollars required to stage a race program, Wolf said.

"In the past two years the board built attractive race cards but attendance figures were disappointing and this year the board felt that it would not be good business to attempt another program," Wolf said.

The president added that in those two years, fairgoers showed a "decided preference for the other entertainment we offered and the money not spent for racing will be used to provide even greater attractions along that line."

Wolfe announced that as one of the "banner attractions" obtained for the fair which opens July 31 and continues through Aug. 3 will be Cleveland's widely known Troop A Mounted Police riders who stage an exhibition in trick riding.

Also featured will be American Motor Maniacs, an automobile thrill show; the Boone County Jamboree, radio station WLW's popular hillbilly players; two days of circus acts combined with a rodeo; and a night military show with Ohio National guardsmen staging a mock sham battle amid a display of fireworks.

The board has increased its premiums for competition for the draft horse show. More than 100 horses were entered in that department last year, and with the premium increase the board hopes that entries will more than double this year.

Premiums have been adjusted in other departments to provide greater show interest in all of them, fair board officials said.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

You Meet Such Interesting People.
(And It's the Little Things You Remember.)

Cole Porter, the songwriter, hates feature length pictures, and rarely sits through one, but he's a pushover for a Disney whimsey. So now and then he reserves 15 or more seats at the Radio City Music hall, invites that many friends to accompany him to the theater, and troops in with his chic guests just at the moment when the Mickey Mouse is starting. At the end of the Mickey Mouse picture, Cole and his friends rise and exit to their limousines. . . .

Jack Benny's wife, Mary Livingston, buys more clothes, furs and jewels than Marlene Dietrich, Hedy Lamarr and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck . . .

Lupe Velez hates stockings and sometimes goes for weeks without wearing a pair . . . They're good friends again now, but when Van Heflin and Katharine Hepburn were feuding in "The Philadelphia Story," Van used to eat garlic with his dinner before every performance . . . Gracie Allen, the dimwit of the airways, actually loathes women who are as dumb as she pretends to be.

John Emery's pockets bulge with faded framed pictures of his Tallulah . . . Monte Woolley, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," has one of the strangest foibles on Broadway: he won't dine with anyone. He'll sit at a table in "21" with a friend, have a cocktail, then say, "See you later."

With this he crosses over to a table for one, where he sits and eats his solitary meal. Afterwards, he rejoins his pal, and they pick up the conversation where it broke off. Nobody's ever explained it — his friends just know that Monty likes to eat alone. . . .

Claudette Colbert is always combing her hair whether it needs combing or not . . . Vincent Astor, who used to be quite a collector of miniature penguins, has switched to dachshunds.

Rose Bampton, Roland Young and Mrs. "Jock" McLean have the largest collections of penguins . . . Maurice Chevalier was the smallest tipper who ever hit Broadway or Hollywood—and if there was a subway going his way he'd take it instead of a cab.

Lili Damita drinks tomato juice at cocktail parties, and likes to drink them standing at the bar, facing the mirror . . . John O'Hara is the best dancer among the literati, and he astonishes orchestra leaders by being able to remember the lyrics to every popular tune since "Dinah"—chorus and verse . . . Mary Kirk Brown has had a white streak put in her dark hair a la Peggy Fears . . .

Erskine Hawkins, the famous trumpeter, carries a pin ball machine with him when his band is on the road, and uses it to settle all arguments between musicians. High score wins the argument, and the money he collects goes to Harlem charities . . .

Toots Shor, who probably knows more baseball players than Judge Landis, can't bear the agony of sitting through a ball game when the Giants are losing. He just goes back to his restaurant and waits for the boys to come in to dinner and bring him the bad news.

When Nelson Eddy reads a book, he wears tortoise shell glasses and sits with his chin on his chest, so he doesn't look like Nelson Eddy any more . . .

When Myrna Loy goes nightclubbing, she's the most enthusiastic patron in the place. At the Diamond Horseshoe the other night she proved the "best audience" of the week, and all but fell on her face applauding the performers—which is nice after you've observed so many of the Hollywood queens powdering their noses and combing their hair while entertainment is going on . . .

Sean O'Casey wears turtle necked sweaters—and at stuffily dressed-up opening nights he even takes curtain calls in them . . . Martha Raye is the only movie personage I ever heard use 52nd street expressions like "Send me, Jackson!" as part of her regular vocabulary.

* * *

When Peggy Hopkins Joyce greets a dozen or so friends in a night club, it looks like a game of post-office . . . Songwriter Jimmy Van Heusen is missing from his Tin Pan Alley haunts these midnights because he's sleeping on a cot in the hangar beside his new plane, resting up for a dawn flight . . .

Helen Morgan is a tropical fish fiend—has an aquarium in her living room and loves to feed the inmates.

Jimmy Scarfa, the cop (shield No. 16484) on traffic duty at 50th and Broadway, acts as judge and jury in the taxi driver debates, directs the flow of traffic, and discourages the fresh lads who try to pick up chorines headed for home via the subways after their shows are over . . .

* * *

Don Ameche, who smiles with such incredible constancy on the screen, frowns at radio rehearsals and on the set before the cameras turn. It's his way of concentrating—and it's given his forehead frown wrinkles! . . . Abe Lyman has the most unconventional vocabulary of any bandleader . . . Marlynn and Michael, the Rainbow Grill dance team, who have given away more than 800 bottles of champagne during their "champagne hours"—drink ginger-ale!

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—George Cukor, the movie woman-tamer, is looking for an interesting, peaceful time with the problem lady of them all—who really, he says, isn't wild.

Cukor came from the stage a decade or so ago with a reputation for knowing how to direct women. Women alone, and women in job lots, were all the same to him. In recent months he has more than justified his name, for he has come unscathed through the temperamental pot-pourri that made up the cast of "The Women," and he has piloted Joan Crawford and a predominantly female cast through "Susan and God" without injury to any and with much benefit to all, including himself. True, he's now but a shadow of his former self, but that's due to rigid diet, not to ducking tempestuously hurled missiles.

Cukor's next job is "Philadelphia Story." And that means his next problem is Katherine Hepburn who used the stage play to confound her movie critics and charm even that small section of Broadway which had seen her earlier stage debacle in "The Lake." Miss Hepburn came along with the play and was tossed with it in the direction of Cukor. I gather that he reached out for the assignment. Miss Hepburn is an old story, and an old friend, and no gold mine at all to Cukor.

"Philadelphia Story" will be his fifth picture with Hepburn. It was he who introduced her to films in "Bill of Divorcement;" he who made her biggest success, "Little Women," one of her worst flops, "Sylvia Scarlett," for which both had high hopes, and her latest, "Holiday."

"I never had the slightest difficulty with her," he says, "and I'm not saying that to spread soft soap. I know she's given a reputation for being tough, and they've made her into a legend for temperament which is partly her own fault. They stick to the legend because it's a better story, but if you ask any of the people who really have worked with her they'll tell you she's swell. That's outside the publicity departments, where she was silly and a nuisance.

Good-humored Cukor, who let Shearer and Crawford and Goddard and Russell and all "The Women" know he was "on" to them, diagnoses the Hepburn legend for us as he would—and does—for Hepburn.

* * *

"She came here a bumptious kid, very belligerent, and she never hesitated to be herself and be frank where most actresses, however insincerely, manage to say sweet and charming things. Katie was fresh—the kind of girl who, if she's tagged for speeding, would talk to the cop and not try to be sweet and coy with him. She comes from a remarkable family, you know. She told me once how her father used to say none of his children would ever willingly attend a wedding or a funeral unless they could be the bride or the corpse.

"But she's older now, more mellowed as a person. I think she'll be more interesting than ever."

Braves Lose as Pitching Staff Fails to Hold Up

Mansfield Employs Four Hurlers In Dropping 19-2 Decision to Lima at Fair Park.

By CHARLES MARTIN

IT APPEARS that the Mansfield Braves will have to bolster their mound corps before making a serious bid to overhaul the leaders in the Ohio State league championship race.

Three Mansfield pitchers and an outfielder paraded to the hill last night as the pace-making Lima Pandas pounded out a one-sided, 19 to 2, victory before approximately 1,000 Westinghouse employes under the floodlights at the Fairground.

Manager Dewey Stover started Alex Radoumis. He lasted until one was out in the second. Then came Tony Scotti, who hurled two innings. Bob Arnold followed him and finally Matt Miazga came in from left field in the sixth and finished the game.

The victory enabled Lima to cling to its lead as Findlay downed Tiffin by a 9 to 4 count. It marked the second time the Pandas have defeated Mansfield at the Fair park and it was the worst setback suffered by the Braves at home this season.

Lima teed off in the first frame for two runs to take a lead that was never threatened as Ed Evans scattered 12 hits to the Braves.

After picking up a 2-0 lead, Lima added three runs in the second, four in the fourth, two in the fifth, seven in the sixth and finished their scoring with a tally in the seventh.

Meanwhile, the Braves found Evans for single markers in the fourth and eighth innnings.

Mansfield, noted for its pitching weakness, since the season opened, is in desperate need of a new mound talent and Joe C. Hartline, club president announced today that additional strength will be added within a few days.

Lima, paced by Kozak, who collected three singles and a double, secured 18 hits off the Braves' hurlers.

The Braves suffered a loss in the first inning when Hal Hundemer was injured while sliding into home. He was replaced at second by Dick Morse, and Gene Woodlin moved in from rightfield to handle the thirdbase assignment.

The change didn't make any difference for the Pandas had little trouble in solving the slants of the Mansfield pitchers. The only Lima player who didn't secure a hit was Crum.

* * *

Freddie Lewis, Mansfield boy, playing his first year wth Lima, added a pair of singles to the Pandas' attack.

Castor Still in Field as Ohio Amateur Reaches Back Stretch.

BULLETIN

SHAKER HEIGHTS COUNTRY CLUB, CLEVELAND—(AP)—A heavy rain turned the Shaker Heights course into a virtual lake today and postponed the second round of the state amateur golf championship. If conditions permit, officials planned to go ahead with the round this afternoon.

By JOE MORTON

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The qualifying field cut in half, Ohio's simon-pure golfers entered the "back stretch" of their 37th state-wide tournament today with eyes glued on a short-money favorite out in front and hopes pinned on "long-shot" surprises.

Thirty-one competitors trailed the modest defending champion, Dayton's Bobby Servis, who easily settled all doubts yesterday that his low-qualifying 70 was not just a speedy 100-yard-dash in the four-day marathon.

As the group started another 18-hole round to pare its number to 16, Robert Campbell of Granville renewed his challenge of a Servis one-man show. Sixteen years old and "baby" of the tournament, he took the measure of Eddie Reubusch of Cincinnati, 4 and 3, while the Daytonian was dropping a less formidable opponent, Melvin Sulser of Columbus with a par-blistering 8 and 7.

Campbell, son of a professional, played heady golf in advancing to the second round and a knowing group of gallerytes immediately marked his well-rounded game as one to "keep an eye on." He met Harold Wilburn of Akron in today's morning play.

Servis teed off against John Lorms of Columbus. Sixteen matches were scheduled during the morning and eight in the afternoon, reducing the field to eight.

Other leading second round pairings included:

R. C. Garrettson of Ashland against Danny Carmichael of Columbus, who eliminated Byron (Barney) Hunt, state publinks champion:

Tom Whiteway of Cleveland against Dick Meiser of Springfield.

Bob Castor, 20-year-old Ashland real estate salesman, against Oliver Transue, twice Cleveland district champion;

Marshall Carlson of Toledo, state collegiate and Ohio conference king, against Steve Pipoly of Youngstown.

Speculate on Indians, Reds

People's Choice May Be 2 Ohio Teams for Series.

CINCINNATI (AP) A people's choice World series ticket might easily include the Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Indians. Both teams are ahead in the race to get their names on a ballot.

The Rhinelanders were still a game and a half in front in the three-way National league scuffle as they faced the Cubs here tonight and the Indians held a little better margin with their successful scalping in the American circuit.

Rhinelanders hoped Paul Derringer's pen over the Cubs would hold for his tenth victory as he tackled Jake Mooty on the mound for the Windy City crew.

Mooty has fooled four batters out of a defeat for Chicago and the Rhinelanders went through stiff batting practice at Crosley Field yesterday to prepare for his and mates' first appearance.

The Reds had four games another Saturday and seven till Sunday scheduled in their home stand with Chicago.

The Cincinnati club was reinforced by return of Ival Goodman to uniform, after undergoing treatment in Philadelphia for a pulled tendon in his right arm.

* * *

Mike McCormick probably will remain in right field for several days, however club officials said, but Goodman will be available as a pinch-hitter.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Definition of an old-timer in sports: A fellow who can remember way back when the national open golf championship was worth a lot of money to the winner.

* * *

Today the winner of what has long been the outstanding test in golf is lucky to make enough out of the title to pay his expenses while playing in it and replace the shoes his wife wore out traipsing after him during 72 holes (or more) of play.

There was a time—but it's two full brassie shots back in the past—when the open champion could do a sweet job of nest feathering in the 12 months following his victory. He could confidently count on dragging down enough in exhibitions, guarantees for tournament appearances, endorsements, and resort offers, to build himself a bungalow, lay the foundations for a fat annuity, and get mama that fur coat she'd been yelling for since he first broke 70.

But fellows as Hagen, Sarazen, and Farrell came close to making fortunes out of the title. Farrell perhaps made more money in one year than any other holder of the title. Johnny, a good looking Irishman, with a delightful personality and a flair for wearing clothes, must have come close to earning $80,000 during the 12 months following his play-off victory over Bobby Jones.

But what of the recent champions? Byron Nelson was lucky if he cleared $5,000 as a result of having the title. The same goes for Ralph Guldahl, and I doubt if Tony Manero and Sam Parks, between them, made $8,000.

The latest and most convincing proof that the national open, like the old gray mare, ain't what she used to be, is offered in Lawson Little's scheduling of three exhibition matches with Ed Oliver. Unless your memory is completely gone you will remember that Little won the title a few weeks ago in a play-off with Sarazen; a play-off that Oliver actually qualified for only to be thrown out on a technicality by the United States golf association.

If the championship were a bonanza, or anything remotely resembling a bonanza, Little wouldn't be planning to engage Oliver in what amounts to an unofficial continuation of the play-off at Canterbury. As a matter of fact, he'd be shunning Oliver, lest that fat and talented hitter of a golf ball heat him and thus rub some of the gilt off his title. As it is, Little is willing to take the risk of Oliver licking him in the exhibition tiffs, and let the gilt fall where it may.

Tournament Enters Quarterfinals

HAVERFORD —(AP)— The national intercollegiate tennis championships entered the quarterfinal round at the Merion Cricket club today with a pair of "dark horses" vying for the limelight with the six remaining seeded entries.

Top-Ranked Don McNeill, national clay court titleholder from Kenyon college, faces one of the "outsiders" in Bill Reedy of southern California. Frank Guernsey, the defending champion from Rice Institute, is pitted against the other, Bill Canning of California.

Newsom Finds Its Better To Be Lucky Than Good

BIG BUCK "SHOWBOAT" NEWSOM of the Detroit Tigers, one of the poisonous personality kids of the thundering thirties in the major leagues, is a fellow who will tell you it's better to be lucky than good anytime.

Newsom hasn't been beaten since the season's opening game with the St. Louis Browns and last night he checked off his tenth victory, a 2-1 tally against those same St. Louis Browns.

Old Showboat, who won 20 games in both 1938 and 1939 and probably will repeat easily enough this year, hasn't had any snap maintaining his present winning streak. That's why he knows that good breaks have helped a lot along the way.

In two of his victories he was knocked out of the box before Detroit won. In two other games he was batted out and Detroit lost without his being charged with the defeat. But the fates were never with him any more strongly than last night in St. Louis.

Newsom pitched a capable game, scattering seven hits and striking out six. This performance was shaded, however, by Bob Harris and Bill Trotter, who held the powerful Tigers to exactly three hits.

The difference was simply that two of Detroit's hits were home runs by Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg, narrowing the gap on the idle Cleveland Indians to two games.

Another three-hitter last night was Hal Schumacher's performance against the Phillies to give the New York Giants a 7-0 shutout.

"Prince Hal" is another fellow who knows the value of luck in baseball. The Giants supported him with 15 safeties last night.

In the only other action in the major leagues yesterday the Brooklyn Dodgers edged out the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in a tight game in which each team got nine hits.

* * *

The victory brought Brooklyn within a game of the first place Cincinnati Reds with the Giants hot behind.

Winebrenner Pitches 2-Hitter; Tinkeys Win

Indians Are Idle Today

Tribe Trounced by Brewers In Exhibition.

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians idled today between an exhibition and the three-game series with the White Sox starting tomorrow at Chicago.

Unawed by Cleveland's American league leadership, the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association trounced the tribe 6 to 3 under the lights last night. And it was a former tribesman, Paul Sullivan, who grabbed the credit, limiting the Redskins to four hits in the last five innings.

* * *

Milwaukee got only three hits and one run off pitcher Johnny Humphries in five frames. Then lanky Mike Naymick made three wild pitches and yielded four hits, enabling tthe Brewers to score three runs in two innings. Bill Zuber, taking over for Cleveland in the eighth, contributed two more wild pitches. Ray Mack led the batting with three singles.

Larry Lajoie Thinks Batters Should Wear New Headgear

By RAY BLOSSER

MENTOR-ON-THE-LAKE — (AP) — Napoleon (Larry) Lajoie, one of baseball's immortals, added his seldom-heard voice today to agitation for headgear to protect batters from whizzing "bean balls."

* * *

Tall and erect at 64, Lajoie looked up from the lawnmower he was pushing around his peaceful summer home and opined:

* * *

"It's better to wear a helmet than to be carried away on a stretcher."

While baseball fans still argue whether he or Eddie Collins was the best second baseman in the game's long history, Lajoie lives 25 miles east of Cleveland.

From May through October he chats with the neighbors, puffing away at a tooth-marked pipe, and works around his two-acre lawn and flower garden. In the winters, he and Mrs. Lajoie rent a home at Lake Worth, Fla.

"They ought to be able to make something to stop the ball from hurting everybody, especially for night baseball," he declared.

"If you got in front of a fast one like Bob Feller throws under the lights, it would be too bad. It's bad enough when you get hit on the back, but it looks like head injuries are increasing.

Lajoie declared a helmet shouldn't interfere with anyone's batting average and he should know, since he hit above .300 for 16 big league years before he retired in 1916.

"Some batters seem glued to the plate," he said with a reminiscent eye.

"I remember being beaned only once—Rube Waddell threw me a curve when I was looking for a fast ball and it glanced off my head. But Frank Chance was hit so many times, 17 or 19 I think it was, that he finally become hard of hearing."

* * *

Not to change the subject, but what about the skidding New York Yankees?

"They're not out yet," was his answer. "I think they'll be right up there." And that from a man who once managed the Cleveland Indians, now leading the American league and seeking their second pennant in 20 years.

STOCKS SWING UPWARD AFTER WILLKIE NEWS

Power and Light Company Bonds Show Strength; Wheat Slips.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks, with utilities in front, bounded up 1 to more than 4 points in today's market as many traders apparently were heartened by the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie as the Republican presidential standard bearer. The European war served to restrain bullish sentiment.

Power and light company bonds exhibited strength. Most commodities were higher, although wheat futures slipped after early improvement. "Free" sterling was lower following yesterday's sharp rally.

Commonwealth & Southern common, the corporation headed by Willkie, started on a block of 75,000 shares, up ⅛ at 1⅞.

Prominent on the forward swing were North American, Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, Public Service of N. J., U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, DuPont, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, Dow Chemical and U. S. Rubber.

Studied was the survey of Dun & Bradstreet estimating substantial improvement in retail sales for the east and middle west this week, with some slackening in other districts due to cool weather and rain.

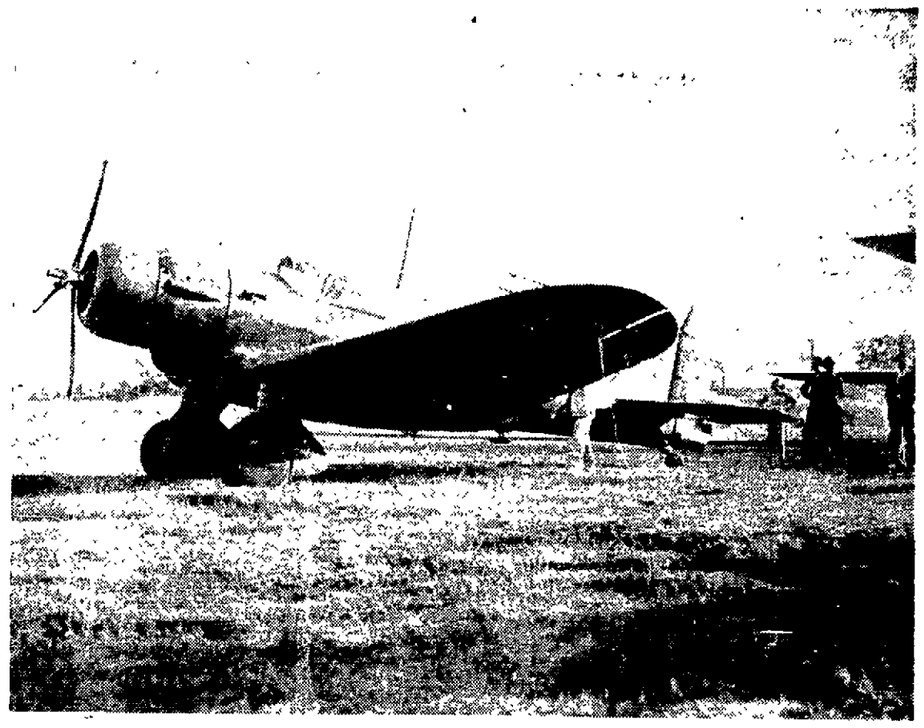
Army Bomber Lands at Mansfield Airport



Shown above is one of the U. S. army air corps' speedy attack planes which landed at the municipal airport last night. The ship was piloted by Capt. Roscoe Akre from Selfridge Field, Mich., who said he was making a tour of Ohio airports to study facilities for their possible use for tactical maneuvers by the air corps. His survey of the field included condition of the grounds, length of the runways, obstructions and facilities for men and equipment. Capt. Akre stayed in Mansfield all night and took off this morning for his home port. The ship, in the U. S. air corps attack class, is similar to the dive bombers used in the European war.

WILLKIE SHEDS HUMBLE TEARS

'Overwhelmed' at Honor, Says Country Boy Nominated For Presidency.

the expression of a political convention, but the wishes of the millions of persons who had signed petitions, organized clubs and sent telegrams by the bale to convention delegates.

It was the people who won the nomination for neither prominence nor organized efforts on the other candidates could prevail against them.

Since early afternoon when the balloting began, Willkie had been sprawled comfortably in an easy chair by the radio in his suite following each of the ballots. But, for that last fateful vote which made him the candidate of the convention and the party, he strolled quietly into a less crowded room and stretched out on a bed."

This was the "smoke filled" room in which he received word of the nomination, not the "smoke filled" room of the political bosses of the past. There wasn't a boss in sight. There wasn't even a ward leader in sight—just people from the plains, the hills and the cities—ordinary people from whom Willkie casually bummed cigarets and exchanged small talk during the long day.

Instead of political advisers, Willkie consulted his run-of-the-mine visitors, his volunteer workers, the newspapermen assigned to cover him. He got his information this way:

"How long do you think Bridges will hold out? Does it look as though Dewey is slipping? How did I do in Indiana on that vote?"

After the first ballot:

"That's about right. I ought to start climbing on the next."

When the second ballot showed a gain he chuckled:

"Boys—she's growing. She ought to bloom on the next one."

Somebody reminded him in mid-afternoon that he hadn't had any lunch.

"I'll eat it here if you don't mind watching me," he said. And he did just that, pushing knife and fork at a right hearty piece of beef and potatoes while his audience kept score for him.

On a doubtful state he would pause, the fork in mid-air, and cock his head to listen. If a break came his way he would grin and wave the fork like a baton. If the vote was unchanged he would grin anyway, remark "it will come along," and return his attention to his meal.

Reporters marveled at the complete openness of the man. Whenever Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota, who was his floor manager, would phone a report, Willkie would promptly pass it along to the newsmen. He told them just when to expect the breaks and he grinned with them when the breaks came.

People wandered in and out of the room, little boys shoved autograph books under his nose, persons who knew a cousin of a friend of his barged in to shake hands, many times while the balloting was in progress and he never failed to come through for them. Then he would turn to the reporters and say:

"I missed that state—how did it go?"

When one state voted a unanimous bloc for another candidate on the first ballot, he remarked:

"There's one liar in that state."

It was the only expression of reproach that he has been known to use since he arrived in Philadelphia last Saturday. He used it because one delegate from that state had given him his hand and said "I'm for you from the outset."

Afternoon wore on into evening and during the convention recess, Willkie slipped away to the second hotel suite he had been compelled to hire for sleeping purposes when visitors crowded him out of his bedroom. He had a nap and a bite to eat and came back refreshed for the night session.

The ballots mounted, Dewey surrendered and as the votes piled up for Willkie he sat more erect, listened more soberly.

The result became obvious, the room became more crowded, policemen and detectives swarmed into the corridor and just before the balloting began which was to result in his nomination, Willkie moved into another room with only a few friends to keep the vigil.

No one was offended. No one suggested that "High Hatitis" had already set in. The situation was obvious—he could not face a crowd at that moment when he was to be nominated as the candidate of the Republican party for the presidency.

Willkie is a broad-shouldered, husky citizen but even a strong man has been known to cry openly under stress of great emotion and to an Indiana farm boy, who could not believe two months ago that the people wanted him, this was a time of great emotion.

Then it was all over, the last ballot was in, the declarations for a unanimous vote began and Wendell Willkie came out of the room.

"I'm grateful and I'm humble," he said. "Now I would like to go to my family."

Eyes bright, a spring in his step, he strode down the corridor, the candidate of the Republican party for the presidency of the United States, the living proof that democracy can work and will work, prevailing over all.
